TERRIFIC STRUGGLE RAGING IN CRIMEA
AS NAZIS HURL NEW TROOPS INTO FRAYGasoline Hoarders
To Be Raided Today,
Fire Chief Warns

Atlantans with more than one gallon of gasoline stored outside their automobile tanks today will be arrested and prosecuted, Fire Chief C. C. Styron, warned last night after a series of raids by fire marshals in which stocks of gasoline were found stored in at least three private garages.

Gasoline Ration
Registration Is
'Light' in City

Registration for gasoline ration cards got under way in Atlanta yesterday "like a bargain day in a department store" with 95 per cent of the applicants insisting they needed more than the basic three-gallon allotment of gasoline to live, question-and-answer-weary rationing workers reported last night.

Confused by conflicting reports on the place to apply for Card X, which allows the holder an unlimited supply of gasoline, dozens of baffled citizens shuttled back and forth between school buildings and government and state rationing agencies all day.

Available Today.
To clarify things school officials announced that Card X would be available at all county schools, at Commercial High and Opportunity school all day and at the following city schools from noon to 5 o'clock in the afternoon: Connally, Lee, Sylvan Hills, James L. Key, Ed S. Cook (Fair), Whiteford, Highland, Clark Howell, Inman, Spring, Luckie and Kingsberry.

Persons using their automobiles in their work can get one of the restricted cards for gas rationing only if they have a commercial license for the automobile or truck, local rationing officials pointed out last night.

A new interpretation from Washington has been received on the cards, they said, requiring the commercial license.

Doctors, nurses, public officials and certain other users may still get X cards, which allow the user an unlimited supply of gas.

Registration Light.
Actual registration yesterday was very light, compared to the bedlam of sugar registration last week and many city elementary schools were able to handle ration card applicants and keep their classes going at the same time. Figures on the number of registrants were not available last night, but rationing officials estimated that 50 per cent of those registering asked for the "X" card, permitting an unlimited supply, 45 per cent wanted one of the three B cards, which allows from 10 to 15 units of gasoline instead of the seven units on an A card. Only 5 per cent of the applicants asked for A cards allowing them three gallons of gas a week.

Persons who apply for a B or X

The broadcast will be at 6:30 p. m. (12:30 p. m. eastern war time) on a wave band of 20.35 and 15.37 meters.

The following day a mass will be broadcast at 11 a. m. (5 a. m. eastern war time) on a wave length of 31.06 and 19.84 meters.

Hotel Manager 'Edits' Newsboy;
Preserves Peace on Home Front

A leather-lunged newsboy stood in front of the doorway to the Wincoff hotel yesterday, yelling in cracked basso: "NAZIS BOMB SIX HOTELS—NAZIS BOMB SIX HOTELS—NAZIS—"

Manager L. O. Moseley popped out of the hotel like a cork out of a bottle.

"Lemme see that paper," he demanded.

The newsboy handed him one of the exciting editions. Innkeeper Moseley peered over the headlines.

"Suppose you yell—"

"RUSSIANS FIGHT NAZIS TO STANDSTILL," he quietly advised the boy.

"But," the boy argued, "you're clipping the freedom of the press."

"That's all right," said Moseley, "you yell—RUSSIANS FIGHT NAZIS TO STANDSTILL."

The boy changed his tune and Innkeeper Moseley went back through the screen doors to welcome the guests.

NO RATION ON MAIL—Far into last night, Miss Flora Casey, left, and Miss Pat Wood, and about 60 other employees of the motor vehicle unit of the State Revenue Department, were busy opening mail from many thousands of Georgians who had lost their auto registration certificates. The mail piled high as the office force handled the personal appearances at their windows, then after hours the mail was handled.

Talmadge Paroles Dan Eidson

Dan Eidson, the East Point flogger, is out of jail today, free to roam as long as he reports every two weeks during the next year to the Fulton county probation officer.

One of a group of East Point men convicted of flogging charges in May, 1940, Eidson was paroled yesterday by Governor Talmadge in the hurry-burry of a "clemency day" at the executive offices in the State Capitol.

"This will save the county money," said Governor Talmadge. "It costs money to keep a man in jail, and Eidson can now go to work for his wife and his children."

Governor Talmadge, in his executive order paroling Eidson, emphasized that the East Point flogger had a good prison record and "it is demoralizing for a man to have to sit around a jail."

The Eidson conviction had brought upon him a $1,000 fine, a 12-month term in a prison camp and six months in jail.

The Talmadge parole relieves him of the last six months of the sentence.

About six months ago, Eidson was one of the principals at a clemency hearing during which Governor Talmadge declared to a packed chamber:

"I got mixed up in a thing like that once myself."

Assistant Solicitor Dan Duke, of Fulton county, who opposed clemency for Eidson at the November hearing, had no comment on the parole yesterday.

The parole had been recommended to Governor Talmadge by the Parole Board.

U-Boat Invades
St. Lawrence,
Sinks Vessel

OTTAWA, May 12.—(P)—The sinking of a freighter in the St. Lawrence river in the first enemy submarine attack ever reported in those waters was announced today by Navy Minister Angus MacDonald.

The St. Lawrence is navigable for large ocean vessels in the broad 500-mile stretch between Quebec and its mouth, where big Anticosti island separates the river estuary from the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Nearly two months ago Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King expressed fear that U-boats would operate in both the gulf and the river.

The attack occurred yesterday, MacDonald disclosed, and 41 survivors have been landed.

"The situation regarding shipping in the river is being closely watched and long-prepared plans for its special protection under these circumstances are in operation," the minister said.

He did not say where the sinking occurred in the river, and gave no other details.

"Any possible future sinkings in this (St. Lawrence) area will not be made public in order that information of value to the enemy may be withheld from him," MacDonald's statement said.

"It is felt, however, that the Canadian public should be informed of the presence of enemy U-boats in Canadian territorial waters and they are assured that every step is being taken to grapple with the situation."

London's Restaurants
Face Meal Limitations

LONDON, May 12.—(P)—Food Minister Lord Woolton announced today that beginning June 1 the price of restaurant meals would be limited to five shillings (about $1) and the number of courses to three.

He told the house of lords that a government order also would enable the food minister to prohibit the serving of fish, game and poultry by restaurants on certain days "to allow domestic consumers (housewives) to purchase a reasonable share of the supplies available."

Russians Repulse
German Onslaught
After Initial Lunge

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
MOSCOW, Wednesday, May 13.—Heavy fighting raged through the night in the Kerch peninsula with the Germans throwing masses of cavalry, tanks and infantry against formidable Russian forces defending that narrow gateway to the Caucasus, front line dispatches reported early today.

Red army troops under General Kozlov, who recaptured the port of Kerch from the Germans last December, were battling the Nazi onslaught in the eastern Crimean struggle but results of the fighting was not learned here immediately. Informants here said the outcome "may be apparent in a few days."

(The Rome radio broadcast a dispatch from an Italian news agency correspondent on the eastern front which claimed "important successes by German-Rumania troops on the Kerch peninsula." This account said the Axis forces were "well beyond" positions from which they launched their attack.)

The fighting on the peninsula was resumed yesterday in a renewal of the giant struggle in which the Russians already announced officially the destruction of 102 Nazi planes in two days.

Drive Toward Oil.
After a Monday night lull in the Nazi drive toward the Caucasus oil wells across the narrow Kerch strait, the Soviet's midnight communique said:

"During May 12 on the Kerch peninsula severe battles took place with the enemy."

"On other sectors of the front there were no significant changes."

A supplement to this communique said that reinforced German units counterattacking on the Kalinin front northwest of Moscow had been beaten off by Soviet troops with heavy casualties to the Nazis.

Red troops commanded by Comrade Demenyuk "drove the Germans into a bog and almost completely annihilated them," the communique said in describing that action.

The bag of 102 Nazi planes occurred Sunday and Monday, and presumably most of them were knocked out on the Crimean front. The Soviets announced the first

War Stamp Counterfeit Ring Smashed

Women's Army
Bill Is Passed
By Congress

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(P)—The bill creating a Women's Auxiliary Army Corps to permit 150,000 women volunteers to serve in noncombat capacity with the troops at home and abroad awaits only President Roosevelt's signature to become law.

The bill was passed today by the senate without amendment on a rollcall vote of 38 to 27.

Unofficial word in Army circles is that the corps will be headed by Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, of Houston, Texas, attractive mother of two young children and wife of former Governor William P. Hobby. She now is chief of the women's interest section of the War Department's public relations bureau.

"Of course," cautious Army spokesmen said, "we can't say anything until after the President has signed the bill. Then Secretary of War Stimson will make the appointment."

The appointee will be the "director" of the corps. She will have rank equivalent to that of a major in the Army.

Under the director will be assistant directors and other officers, tactfully referred to in the bill as "leaders" and "auxiliaries" and on down to the $21-a-month Doe-private.

It is understood that to get the women's corps started, from 20 to 30 women will be selected from each Army corps area for training.

As for uniforms, about the only certain thing that can be learned is that there are to be uniforms and they'll likely be khaki. Designs and models have already been made up, but they're being kept under lock. That there are men at work on this problem of what the well-dressed soldierette should wear was disclosed when it leaked out that they had forgotten that women wear such items (usually) as panties, girdles and nighties. Doughboys sleep in their undies or as-is.

House Votes
$50 Pay Base
For Soldiers

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(P)—A big raise for buck privates and apprentice seamen to bring their pay to $50 a month was voted tentatively by the house today, but final passage of the measure increasing the pay of the fighting forces was put off until tomorrow.

As passed by the senate, the bill would have raised the pay of privates and apprentice seamen to $42 a month, but the house adopted, 102 to 40, an amendment by Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, boosting this figure by $8. The amendment also provided that first-class privates and second-class seamen should receive $54 a month, $6 more than the senate version.

It has been estimated the senate bill would add $300,000,000 a year to the military payroll for an Army and Navy the size of last January's.

While the major goal of the bill is to take care of privates and other service men in the low-pay brackets, it also would benefit officers by increasing their rental and subsistence allowances. It affects the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey, Public Health Service and Nursing Service.

It provides base pay boosts for men up to and including second lieutenants and ensigns, the increase for these officers being $300 annually in pay and a small boost in allowances.

Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, said the military committee would follow up the pay boost bill with the proposal for government payments to dependents of fighting men. Some committee members said the two bills together would remove many of the objections against drafting married men with dependents.

Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, endorsing this measure, told the committee that financial care of service men's dependents was "a federal responsibility."

Proposal To Increase
Taxes Nearing Vote

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(P)—A last-minute suggestion that single persons who earn between $9 and $10 a week be asked to pay federal income taxes was presented to the House Ways and Means Committee today as the members prepared to vote soon on the questions of lowering personal exemptions, raising rates, or choosing a combination of both.

Colin F. Stam, head of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue, proposed informally that if exemptions were to be lowered, the action apply only to normal taxes, with present exemptions retained so far as surtaxes are concerned.

Just before Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, expressed the hope publicly that "we might start voting tomorrow" on individual taxes, Stam was reported to have suggested this alternative to a previous program he recommended and to the Treasury Department's scheme:

Lower the personal exemption of a single person from $750 to $500 and of married couples from $1,500 to $1,000; retain the present $400 credit for each dependent, and the earned income credit and raise the normal tax from 4 per cent to 6 per cent; retain the present personal exemptions in computing surtaxes, the rates of which were not disclosed immediately.

The Treasury Department has proposed $600 and $1,200 exemptions, with the dependent credit cut from $400 to $300; elimination of the earned income credit and increasing the present minimum surtax rate of 6 per cent to 12 per cent on the first $2,000 of net income to 12 per cent on the first $500.

Stam last week had suggested retention of present personal exemptions, a normal tax of 6 per cent and a surtax of 11 per cent on the first $2,000 of net income.

Members reported that the revised Treasury schedules would produce about $3,400,000,000 in additional revenue; the first Stam plan $1,300,000,000 and today's program, $1,547,000,000.

They said the committee's decision on these questions probably

6 Arrested;
May Invoke
Treason Law

NEW YORK, May 12.—(P)—Smashing of the first attempt to sell the American people bogus War Savings Stamps was claimed by secret service agents today with the arrest of six men on charges of conspiring to counterfeit stamps worth $52,500 had they been valid.

One of the secret service officials said the government was considering whether to invoke the law concerning treasonable acts, in addition to the counterfeit charges.

James J. Maloney, supervising agent of the New York division of the secret service, said that sales of the alleged counterfeit stamps, manufactured in 25-cent denominations, had not yet been started but that he had no doubt the ring contemplated selling them on a nationwide scale.

Maloney said secret service men and postal inspectors had trailed the group since February but had withheld any action until today "in order to get them all."

All those arrested were residents of New York city.

Chief Assistant United States Attorney Howard F. Corcoran said he would ask indictments of a federal grand jury shortly and added:

"This conspiracy, if allowed to run, might have had very serious repercussions. Fortunately, the secret service men stepped in in time and need counterfeit stamps put out to the public. This, however, does not mitigate the crime."

Two of those arrested, the brothers Abraham and Joseph Perkes who are accused by the government of originating the scheme and making the plates, were held in $25,000 bail each on their arraignment before United States Commissioner Isaac Platt.

Bail for Harry Horowitz, accused of agreeing to print the stamps, was fixed at $20,000. Abraham Glickstein, an alleged salesman for the ring, and Morris Rubin, named as the contact man, each were held in $7,500 bail.

Japs, Chinese
Surge in Clash
On Burma Road

LONDON, May 12.—(P)—The Japanese who have swept northward through Burma surged back and forth in desperate battle with the Chinese along the tortuous Burma road in western Yunnan province today and met another check in their simultaneous drive toward India in the other direction.

But the unforeseen resurgence of the Chinese and the furious stand of the British both appeared to be too late either to retrieve Burma or to remove the increasing threat to India as the Japanese quickly brought up reinforcements for both main ventures, on the eastern and western forks of their drive.

The Chinese early in the evening announced that the main force of the invasion column which had penetrated Yunnan through China's back door had been driven back southwestward to Wanting, on the Burma border, but a later communique acknowledged that the Japanese had brought up reinforcements and were renewing the attack.

Inside China.

This apparently was in the region between Chefang and Mangshih, 25 and 55 miles inside China, respectively. There the Chinese had said they were heavily engaged remnants and rear guards of the first Japanese force after having forced them back 30 miles from their deepest penetration near Lungling.

With the arrival of reinforcements apparently this Japanese rear guard reassured itself as an advance guard.

A Chinese spokesman said, however, that "the enemy will not be allowed to rest or consolidate his positions." He praised the recent work of the AVG and RAF and expressed hope that this essential aerial support would continue and grow.

The Chinese forces which had been by-passed in central Burma and which last week recaptured Maymyo were continuing to exert pressure on the Japanese from the rear.

Circle Movements.

The Chungking spokesman said the Chinese now were seeking to encircle the Japanese and the Japanese were trying to encircle the Chinese.

"Who will succeed remains to be seen," he remarked, displaying a map to illustrate the fluid nature of the fighting.

This showed the Japanese in an arc linking Myitkyina and Bhamo in upper Burma with Wanting in Yunnan; another Japanese force extended from Loilem in Burma to Wanting; and a third Japanese line from Loilem eastward toward Kongkong on the Salween river near the border.

Chinese lines interlock with these invader positions, so that it is possible for either opponent to encircle the other at several places.

Despite the possibilities of this situation in a wild, mountainous region, the Japanese in west Burma were continuing to push northward toward the Chinwin river valley against the British.

British Casualty List
For War Is 183,550

LONDON, May 12.—(P)—Casualties in the British Empire's armed forces for the first two years of the war were 183,550, of which 48,973 were killed, Clement Attlee, secretary of state for dominion affairs, disclosed today in reply to a question in the house of commons.

Nazis Assume Vast Power Over French Labor 'Surplus'

BERN, Switzerland, May 12.—(AP)—The German occupying authorities in France arrogated to themselves today vast power over French labor, and coincident reports were heard that Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering might meet tomorrow with Marshal Petain and Pierre Laval to reach "final decisions" involving France's relations with the United States and her future course in the war.

General Otto von Stuepnagel, military commandant of occupied France, promulgated the decree which authority to increase working hours in French plants was taken into Nazi hands and under which all French employers were ordered to turn in the names of workmen who, as a result of these longer periods, would be available for other labor.

Although the old Popular Front labor laws had long since been annulled, much of French industry has been operating on a 40-hour week, and sometimes no more than 20 hours, in order to spread the limited employment available.

It appeared that the Nazis intended to increase their supply of forced labor simply by throwing out many of those presently employed in French industry and taking them in hand through the reports required to be made by employers.

Foreign Affairs.

As to France's foreign affairs, it was reported in foreign diplomatic quarters here that Otto Abetz, Hitler's personal representative in occupied Paris, had met Chief of Government Laval yesterday on the French demarcation line at Moulins to arrange for a conference with Goering. In this projected conference, so it was understood—Laval was expected to say the fateful word for France on these matters:

1. Whether France was to reject the request of the United States for guarantees from the local government of Vichy-controlled Martinique that neither that island nor other French possessions in the area would be used by the Axis or in any other way to menace America; and whether France thus was to break with the United States.

2. How far France was to go in military collaboration with the Axis.

3. Whether there was to be at least a provisional settlement of French issues with Italy, these quarrels having long been an obstruction to Germany's efforts to get full co-operation from France against her old friends Britain and the United States.

Imperious Concern.

All these were assumed to have been those affairs of "imperious concern," as Vichy described them, which yesterday had caused Marshal Petain to interrupt a holiday on the Riviera and hurry back to Vichy.

Whatever may be decided as to French military "collaboration" with the Nazi conquerors, some foreign observers here thought it most unlikely to go as far as an outright military alliance.

They pointed, however, to the considerable French fleet, and French troops in North Africa, as possible great prizes to Hitler if, as is widely expected, he tries to lash out in the Mediterranean this year.

Hull Ignores Vichy's Views On Martinique

Says U. S. 'Not Concerned' With Laval Reaction to Conferences.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP) Secretary Hull made it plain today that so far as this government is concerned Vichy's reaction has not bearing upon the current negotiations at Martinique to prevent Axis use of that island or other Caribbean French possessions to menace America.

The Washington government, he indicated to reporters, is interested only in the actual discussions with Admiral Georges Robert, the French high commissioner at Martinique. He said the government was not endeavoring to follow any other phase of the Martinique situation.

The discussions at Martinique were begun on Saturday, when Admiral John H. Hoover, commanding Naval officer in the area, and Samuel Reber, the State Department's assistant chief of the division of European affairs, arrived at the French-owned island.

They presented a formula under which Robert would guarantee that Martinique, Guadeloupe and French Guiana would not be used by the Axis or in any way menace the cause of the United Nations.

In return, the French flag would continue to fly over those colonies and Admiral Robert would be recognized as their ultimate governing official.

No mention was made of alternatives, and the department emphasized that the conversations were proceeding in a friendly spirit.

The developments raised the question whether Robert had sufficient authority to approve such an understanding without first submitting it to Vichy, or whether he might conclude the arrangement regardless of the attitude of Laval and Petain.

LABOR LEADER DIES.

VICHY, Unoccupied France, May 12.—(AP)—The newspaper La France Socialiste reported today the death of the French labor leader, Georges Yvetot, who turned collaborator after a lifetime as a militant unionist. He was 78.

SCIENCE FAIR WINNER—Long-leaf pine from Cochran, Ga., is one of the ornamental items included in the Girls' High school nature exhibit at the Fernbank Children's Nature Museum now, as is Dorothy Adcock, freshman at Girls' High and one of the contributors to this prize-winning show.

Subject Matter Impressive at 'Science Fair'

Poster Work, Exhibits of Students Praised at Fernbank Museum.

By EUGENIA BRIDGES HARTY. Junior and Senior high school students of Greater Atlanta public school systems have gathered to show their hobbies and labeled them for exhibition at Atlanta's first Science Fair, now being held at the Fernbank Children's Nature Museum, 849 Clifton road, N. E.

The show has been arranged with obvious enjoyment and keen interest by several hundred Jacks and Jills whose meticulous poster work, accompanying the displays of their prize possessions, is in itself a feat. The fair is composed of an exhibit from each contributing high school in the Fulton, DeKalb, Atlanta and Decatur educational system.

Subject Matter.

Subject matter included in the fair's various booths is as varied as are the students' hobbies. There is the Girls' High collection of Wild Flowers You Must Not Pick (because they are fast becoming extinct) and this ornamental and original piece of work is the sweepstakes winner. Be careful, it warns, not to pick the flame azalea, Georgia's most beautiful wild blossom, many will agree. Each of the flowers grow for visitors' inspection in the Girls' High booth, which requires a whole room for display purposes. Another quite different but equally effective show is that from Boys' High and Tech High—a group of model planes that are destined for the United States Navy. Girls' High also has model plane exhibit. Still another is Bass Junior High's clever chart, showing the various means of seed dissemination. It is called "Seeds in Defense," and the various seed heads as "Parachutists," "Fifth Columnists," "Armored Division," "Air Corps," "Artillery," "Quartermaster" and "Marines."

"Seeds in Defense," the title of this show, implies one meaning in reality refers to the seeds' self-protective instincts, their means of survival. The "Fifth Columnists" are cockle burrs and other such seeds which are distributed by agents other than the plant itself. Included among the Quartermaster division are seeds such as peaches, plums, grapes, etc., which man devours and the seeds of which he discards. It is one of the most ingenious exhibits on display.

There are dozens of others which deserve particular mention, a collection of land and sea shells, snakes, stuffed birds. The exhibit may be viewed until May 20 and Sunday afternoons from 2 until 6 o'clock. The public is invited.

Fernbank Impressive. Not only is the city's first Science Fair worth making a trip to see, but Fernbank itself is a sight that is comforting to city-dwellers' eyes. This Children's Nature Museum, in the heart of Druid Hills, is surrounded by 60 acres of virgin forest. Bird walks are the order of the day every day. The place abounds in plant life, every blossoming one native to Georgia. At this season it is in full bloom. There is a new bubbling fountain, the recent gift of Fulton county. There are giant oaks and graceful long-leaf pines from Cochran, Ga. One of the largest and most well-proportioned dogwood trees in the city may be seen. And wild fairs grow literally by the thousands, everywhere. A tree-bordered lake, streams and springs dot the reserve.

Dive Bombers Sink 3 British Destroyers in Mediterranean

By DREW MIDDLETON.

LONDON, May 12.—(AP)—The German air force, broadening its campaign to drive the British navy from the Middle sea, dive-bombed and sank three powerful new British destroyers yesterday in the eastern Mediterranean.

Loss of the ships, the 1,920-ton Lively and the Kipling and Jackal, of 1,650 tons each, was announced today by the admiralty which said 500 officers and men—all but about 100 men of the total complement of the sunken vessels—were rescued.

A fourth destroyer picked up the survivors, carrying out its gallant mission in seas littered with wreckage, splashed with blazing oil and rent with exploding bombs.

Avenge the naval losses, Malta's defenders today boosted to 128 their four-day total of Axis planes destroyed or damaged over the island fortress. The day's bag included five enemy fighters destroyed, one bomber and three fighters probably destroyed, four fighters and three bombers damaged.

Timing this attack with large-scale raids on Malta, swarms of Heinkel and Junkers bombers assaulted the British flotilla just after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The Lively was hit with four bombs in the first assault and sank within a few minutes, according to today's Berlin version of the battle.

British beachfighters repelled a second attack, shooting down the Heinkel and damaged seven other enemy bombers. After this check the Germans returned a third time to the assault, scoring two bomb hits each on the Kipling and Jackal.

The Kipling went down at once but the Jackal stayed afloat and the fourth destroyer towed her out of the battle area. It was necessary, however, for the British to sink the wounded destroyer this morning.

The attack, carried out in an effort to insure passage of supplies to Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis forces in Libya, apparently was made by planes from newly reinforced bases in Crete, Greece and the Dodecanese islands.

Both the Heinkel III's and Junkers 88's, which participated in the assault, are medium bombers with considerable range. The Heinkel can carry 4,200 pounds of bombs a distance of 2,140 miles while the Junkers can handle a 4,400-pound load for 1,340 miles. The Junkers 88 is not the famed "Stuka" dive-bomber, which is fitted with brakes for use in dive-bombing.

The losses brought to 77 the total of British destroyers sunk since the war began. Britain began the war with 185 destroyers, to which the 50 obtained from the United States and an undisclosed number of new ones have been added.

The Lively was of the lightning class and was completed in 1940. The Kipling and Jackal, both of the Javelin class, were finished in 1939.

With Axis air and naval activity in the Mediterranean increasing, British concern over the middle eastern coast was underlined by orders for a blackout in Trans-Jordan and an order forbidding shipping to approach the Palestine coast between sundown and sunrise.

Streamlining Ordered For Defense Staffs

Many Officers Will Be Returned to 'Ranks.'

Top-heavy civilian defense staffs in the metropolitan area must be cut and streamlined and only those persons who have taken required courses and qualified will be issued identification cards, George M. (Pup) Phillips, metropolitan defense director, told members of the headquarters staff, zone defense directors and their staffs at a meeting held yesterday at the city hall.

Brigadier General E. G. Peyton, commander of the Atlanta defense division, called his aides into conference to meet Phillips' designation.

Phillips scored the fact that many identification cards have been issued to persons not trained. He said that all cards issued will be canceled and new cards issued only to those who qualify through training.

Alluding to what he called "top-heavy and stuffed staffs," Phillips said there are too many officers and not enough men. Some of those who now have titles must get into the ranks and help the men in the event of an emergency, he added.

New British Offensive

In Egypt Is Reported

LONDON, May 12.—(AP)—Great Britain is sending "very great" land, sea and air forces to Egypt and very probably will launch a new offensive in Africa, the Rome correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said in a dispatch quoted today by Reuters.

He credited the information to Italian military observers.

(British commentators, on the other hand, have been stressing the heat in the Libyan desert as ruling out an offensive by either side for the time being.)

New 'Air Medal' Award Authorized by Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt authorized today the establishment of a new "air medal" to be awarded to persons in the armed services who distinguish themselves while on a flight.

The executive order creating the medal did not describe it but it stipulated that no more than one shall be awarded to an individual. For additional meritorious achievements, a bar or other device may be awarded to be worn with the medal.

Aerial feats subsequent to September 8, 1939, may be given recognition, the order said, by award of the medal.

Airline Pilots Killed; Sergeant Saves 10 Passengers

MILES CITY, Mont., May 12.—(AP)—A quick-thinking army sergeant saved his own and 10 other lives today in the crash of a Northwest Airlines transport which fatally injured three airline pilots.

Overshooting the airport, the plane crashed into a ravine half mile beyond the air field and burst into flames. As soon as it came to rest, Sergeant Carl Dinus, of Savannah, Ga., battered through a window while Lieutenant Alfred Albert, of Cottage Grove, Oregon, and two civilian passengers pushed at the plane's jammed door. From the outside, Sergeant Dinus was able to open the door. Lieutenant Allen pushed through and with Stewardess Lois Hallan, of Aitkin, Minn., helped all the passengers out.

Captain Eugene S. Shank, about 34, of Minneapolis, pilot of the Minneapolis-to-Seattle plane, died of a skull fracture. First Officer Donald Harold Nygren, 21, of St. Paul, was trapped and burned to death in the pilot's cabin.

Captain K. R. Martin, of Seattle, a third Northwest Airlines pilot aboard the craft, died of burns five hours after the crash.

Lieutenant Allen, an anti-aircraft officer en route home from his South Carolina camp, tried to get into the plane's nose to reach Nygren, but the flames drove him back.

One passenger said no one knew the plane was burning until they scrambled out of the cabin. The window curtains had been drawn three minutes from the airport in compliance with wartime regulations.

Bomber Crashes, Kills Crew of Five

EVERETT, Wash., May 12.—(AP)—A two-motored bomber crashed and burned just off nearby Paine Field late today, killing the five crew members.

Paine Field officers withheld disclosure of the victims' identities, pending notification of their next of kin.

The crash occurred in woods between the field and Puget Sound, the Public Relations Office reported, and the impact imbedded the wreckage deeply in the ground. The fire was extinguished by field equipment. The plane was on a routine training flight.

Naval Air Cadet Killed at Pensacola

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 12.—(AP)—Naval Aviation Cadet Kenneth Wright McCormick, 23, was killed late today in a collision between two Navy planes near Corry Field.

McCormick's ship crashed and burned. The other plane was landed safely. The victim was the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. McCormick, of (334 Springfield road) Alden, Pa.

Seven Pilots Killed in Oklahoma Crashes

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 12.—(AP)—Army training flights brought death to seven pilots and injury to two others in Oklahoma today in a series of widely separated crashes.

The dead were identified by air base officers as: Lieutenant Chester P. Toler, 22, Grants Pass, Ore., pilot of one plane. Private Samuel W. Dye, 32, Ogden, Utah, gunner. Private James D. Wesleyan Hears Chinese Diplomat

MACON, Ga., May 12.—(AP)—Dr. Y. C. Yang, Chinese diplomat and president of Soochow University, expressed hope today for a brighter and happier world through union of the moral forces of China and the United States.

Addressing a Wesleyan College Benefactors' Day gathering at which a portrait of Madame Chiang Kai-shek was presented the school, Dr. Yang declared "China is always looking at America, her great, true and helpful friend."

"America is a great moral force in a world overwhelmingly dominated by physical force," he said. "America is the best exponent of Christian civilization in the west."

"More Chinese students are sent to this country than to all other countries in the west put together. The debt of China to America is thus threefold, educational, medical and political."

Bishop Arthur Moore of the Methodist church dedicating the several tablets placed in honor of Wesleyan benefactors and W. D. Anderson, Macon industrialist, who presided at the exercises, predicted a continued expansion of the school.

CIVITANS HEAR TURNER

Eugene A. Turner, for 28 years in China as a representative of the Y. M. C. A., discussed "The Situation in China" yesterday at the luncheon of the Civitan Club at the Atlanta Athletic Club. He expressed the belief that "as long as a Japanese soldier remains on Chinese soil the war in that country will continue, because the Chinese won't quit."

Purcell, Okla., an instructor, and William E. Halstead, 24, aviation cadet from Denver, were the victims of one crash as they attempted to land on an emergency field. Robert F. Shoup, 26, aviation cadet from Butler, Pa., died in the other accident, 10 miles south of the Enid base, while on a routine night flight early today.

Gigantic Sale Of U. S. Wheat, Corn Is Seen

Price Cannot Go Below 85 Per Cent of Parity.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP)—The Senate Appropriations Subcommittee agreed today to permit the government to sell up to 125,000,000 bushels of wheat and unlimited stocks of corn for livestock feeding, provided that none would be sold at a price that would force corn below 85 per cent of parity.

Chairman Russell, Democrat, Georgia, said the action modified a house provision in the annual farm funds measure which barred the use of any farm funds for sales of government stocks of corn, wheat, cotton and other products at less than full parity level.

Russell, who described the modification as a "pretty fair compromise," said that a general understanding had been worked out with the Department of Agriculture which "should assure plenty of feed for production of meats, poultry, dairy products and other commodities needed for the war effort."

He acknowledged that the program was not all that President Roosevelt had asked for but "no one," he said, "can get all he wants in this sort of a dispute."

The senator said the subcommittee had completed its work and that the full Appropriation Committee would meet tomorrow forenoon to act upon the measure. It carries funds for operation of farm benefit, farm security, farm tenancy, rural electrification programs and numerous other far-flung activities now centered in the Agriculture Department.

Senators said clerks probably would not know exact totals until the full committee is ready to act. Russell disclosed, however, that the senate made some increases over the $648,170,517 in cash and $105,000,000 in loans voted by the house some weeks ago.

Fourth Corps Area Chief Helped Write Famed Caisson Song

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

Any casual visitor viewing Major General William Bryden across the desk where he handles the command of the Fourth Corps Area today could scarcely picture him cutting a rug with an emphatic foot and roaring out:

"For it's 'Hil Hil Heel' in the Field Artillery
Call off your numbers loud and strong—"

But there was a day in the Philippines back in 1908.

Major General William Bryden was just Bill Bryden then—a lieutenant in the Field Artillery of the United States Army, not so long out of West Point and with a flare for what passed in that day as "hot music."

Back in 1908, the stuff that is known today as swing, and is just beginning to be known as boogie-woogie, was known simply as ragtime. In the United States in that era, the poppers and mommers scurried upstairs to escape the din when the sons and daughters and their visitors threatened to disembowel the old family piano with that "horrible stuff."

He Admits It Now.

But Bill Bryden, the lieutenant in the Field Artillery, was way over in the Philippines, living in a barracks and he was the proud owner of a guitar. Yes sir, Major General William Bryden, commander of the Fourth Corps Area of the United States Army, with headquarters in Atlanta, once owned and played a guitar. He admits it sort of sheepishly today. He has other things on his mind. Today a caisson means more than a theme for a song. He remembers, though—

"And where'er you go, you will always know
That those caissons are rolling along."

When he hears a regimental band playing that brisk march today, a faraway look comes into the general's eyes.

He remembers the Philippines in 1908—peaceful—the officers' quarters at Fort Stotsenberg, just north of Manila—the guitar—those Sunday afternoons when there was little to do—he remembers the boys graduated with him from West Point—and he remembers "Snitz" Gruber, another lieutenant in the Field Artillery, a classmate and a hell of a good fellow.

Author of Song.

"Snitz" Gruber died on Memorial Day a year ago. He was Brigadier General E. L. Gruber, commander at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., when he died.

"Then in peace I'll abide, when I take my final ride
On a caisson that's rolling along."

"Snitz" Gruber," said General Bryden yesterday, "was a lieutenant and he actually wrote that 'caisson' song."

"I owned the guitar, but I guess 'Snitz' played it more than I did. He loved music."

"He'd work out a few bars and he'd strum along until he had the idea sort of started and we'd all bend our heads close together and work up words to go with it.

"Snitz" had the original 'caisson' idea and we'd catch the spirit and we used to have fun singing there in the quarters.

"Then one day, the colonel of the regiment heard us singing and he decided this was a mighty inspiring artillery song. He had Gruber turn the score over to the bandmaster of the regiment—and they worked on it, together."

Had To Clean It Up.

There was a good bit of the incoming jazz to that original version, said General Bryden yesterday. He smiled—

"We had to clean it up and get some of the barber shop chords out to make it a real, swinging march."

That was back in the days when the United States soldier wore a campaign hat and hard, binding leggings, a high stiff collar, and looked somewhat like the Boy Scout of today.

But they had the spirit and they had the dash and they sang:

"Fire at will, lay 'em low, never stop for any foe, While those caissons go rolling along."

That was in 1908. Just before the first World War. John Philip Sousa adapted the "Caisson" song, gave it still more dash and vim, did some brushing up in the opening chords and made it a real, swinging march.

"I'm glad that 'Snitz' Gruber copyrighted that song a few years ago," said General Bryden yesterday. "It will always be popular and he deserves all the credit."

But General Bryden sat in on the birth.

Committee Seeks Milk Fund Action

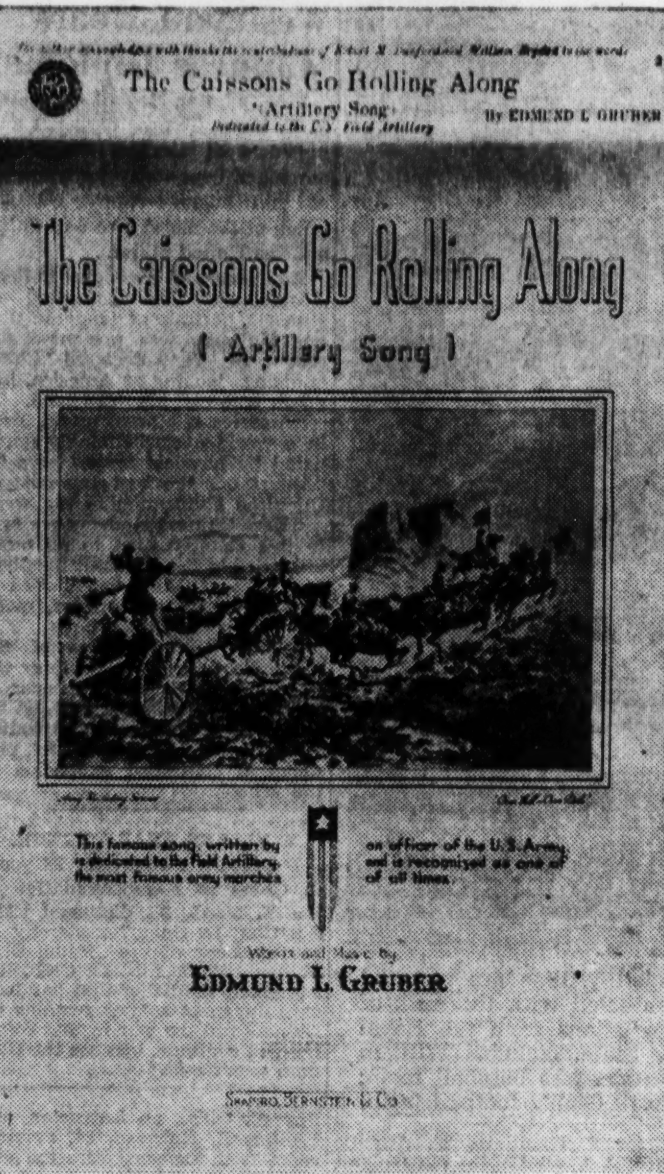

Early action by the city council on a request that $1,000 a month be appropriated to buy milk for Atlanta children who are unable to buy a sufficient amount is being asked by a special milk committee of the Atlanta P-T-A Council.

The council announced that it considered "insufficient" the $1,000 a month already set aside by the County Welfare Department for such purpose.

The special milk committee, appointed by Mrs. W. C. Kendrick, president of the council, includes Mrs. D. R. Longino, chairman; Mrs. J. Y. Wilson, Mrs. Berna Abercrombie, Mrs. J. L. Richardson and Mrs. W. C. Arnold.

NEW OPA OFFICE.

A branch office of the Office of Production Administration will be located at Columbia, S. C., Oscar R. Strauss Jr., regional administrator, announced yesterday. Strauss said John Gregg McMassters will be in charge of the office, the only one to be located in the state. The office will be at 212 Palmetto building.

THE CAISSONS ROLL—One of the Army's favorite marches—the brisk song of the Field Artillery—is "The Caissons Go Rolling Along" some of the words having been contributed by Major General William Bryden, new commander of the Fourth Corps Area in Atlanta.

HE ONCE HAD A GUITAR—Major General William Bryden, now in charge of Fourth Corps Area activities of the Army, was a lieutenant in the Philippines when "The Caissons Go Rolling Along" was written by a friend in the Field Artillery. The music was picked out, bit by bit, on Lieutenant Bryden's guitar.

Salesman Says He Paid Evans To Collect Bill

W. L. Tucker Testifies Former Wizard Received $2,500.

A witness for the prosecution, also under indictment for alleged conspiracy to defraud the state, yesterday testified at the trial of Dr. Hiram W. Evans in Fulton superior court that he paid the former imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan $2,500 to collect a $21,000 printing bill which he said had been held up in the State Department of Public Welfare.

The witness was Wiley L. Tucker, youthful salesman for the Williams Printing Company, who testified he had seen E. D. Rivers Jr., then attorney for the State Department of Welfare, about obtaining a large printing order. The Governor's son, a friend of his, had promised to help him and later, he said, he was given a blank order signed "by O. G. Glover, assistant purchasing agent, by L. Ramsey."

$2,500 Agreed On.

After the order had been executed and the price fixed at $26,000, he said Charles Doolittle, an employee of the department, put him off when he tried to collect. Tucker said he was anxious about his 20 per cent commission on the sale.

After five weeks of waiting, and after the bill had been reduced to $21,000 he said he decided to ask the aid of Dr. Evans, for whom he had worked in the Ku Klux Klan.

"I think I can help you," Tucker quoted the doctor as saying, "but I think it is worth something."

Tucker then said he agreed to pay Dr. Evans $2,500 for collecting the bill. A few days later, he went on, the Department of Public Welfare made a first payment of $7,200, of which he received $3,000 as part of his commission. He then said he cashed this check and telephoned Dr. Evans he was ready to pay him.

Money in Dictionary.

Dr. Evans told him to come to his office, said Tucker, and to leave the money in a dictionary if he were not there. Tucker said he went to Dr. Evans' office with the cash. Finding no one there, he said he left the $2,500 in a dictionary in the outer office.

Branch asked the witness if Mrs. Ramsey had not also been an employee of Dr. Evans at Klan headquarters. He couldn't remember, but H. A. Allen, of defense council, brought out that it was Mrs. Ramsey's husband who had worked for the Klan.

Defense counsel objected strenuously to Tucker's testimony on the grounds it had nothing to do with the present indictment dealing with sales of sand asphalt to the state and that the printing transaction took place in 1937, two years before the alleged sand asphalt conspiracy was alleged to have been formed.

Rivers in California.

William Schley Howard, for the defense, said former Governor Rivers, also under indictment at the time of the printing deal, was seriously ill in a hospital in California and knew nothing about it. "Everything from a pet pig to a marble has been thrown at him," said Howard.

H. A. Allen contended Evans' role in collecting the printing bill was entirely legitimate.

"Did you seek Dr. Evans' aid as part of a conspiracy to defraud the state?" he asked the witness. "No, sir," replied Tucker.

W. L. Cobb, of the Cobb Construction Company, continued his testimony yesterday. Branch questioned him regarding a series of orders for sand asphalt issued on the same day in 1940 for the same camp. The witness said he himself would have bid a smaller price for all the asphalt ordered that day than for the smaller quantities and could give no explanation why the material had been ordered on the same day in small amounts.

Army New Market For Georgia Apples

A new market for north Georgia apples—from those orchards motorists see from the highway in Habersham and adjoining counties—has been found. The Army.

Apples are too bulky to be shipped in quantity to the forces far away. They have too much water in them—and shipping water costs money.

So the "apple nugget" has been developed. Just a dehydrated apple. All the water dried out, with the flavor remaining. Like the old-fashioned dried apple, which was good in pies, but better.

The Quartermaster Department of the Fourth Corps Area, centering in Atlanta, has contracted for a million pounds of "apple nugget." Not all apples are adaptable, but the north Georgia varieties are.

FOOD IMPORTANT.

ATHENS, Ga., May 12.—A reserve supply of preserved foods and the feeds that can be carried with least waste should be kept on every Georgia farm to take care of bad crop years, recommends the Agricultural Extension Service.

Who struck Billy Patterson?

THIS QUESTION is the basis of a famous Georgia tradition which bears every semblance of truth, William Patterson of Baltimore, one of the projectors of the B. & O. Railroad and first president of the Bank of Maryland, who loaned a large sum to General Lafayette for the expenses of his troops, was a man of powerful physique. He was the father of Betty Patterson who married Jerome Bonaparte.

Once on a visit to Georgia he attended a public drill of the State Militia. Suddenly there was a tumult and Mr. Patterson was knocked unconscious by an unknown assailant. Upon recovering consciousness, his first words were, "Who struck Billy Patterson?" He walked about all afternoon repeating the inquiry until the phrase was on everybody's lips. His size and strength may have been the reason why the guilty party failed to acknowledge the assault. Finally, the irate gentleman offered a reward for the information, but without result.

It became the dearest wish of his life to discover "who struck Billy Patterson," but the good man died on February 7, 1835, without having his wish fulfilled. He left a codicil in his will promising a legacy of $1,000 to be paid at any future time to any person who might truthfully solve the riddle. A copy of his will is said to have been filed in the Ordinary's office at Carnesville, Georgia. Through its agents and brokers, THE GEORGIA HOME has served property owners since 1859.

Jap Navy Hides, Awaiting Ships To Bring More Planes

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 12.—(AP)—Apparently forced to postpone an invasion attempt because of damages inflicted by the Allies in the Coral sea battle, the Japanese invasion force was believed tonight to be lurking in island hideouts north of Australia, waiting for sea-borne plane reinforcements.

Fresh Turmoil Threatening Hitler's Order

Quisling's Opponents Subjected to Vile Indignities.

BERN, Switzerland, May 12.—(AP)—The nations which Germany conquered and her satellites, too, provided new turmoil tonight for the Axis architects of what Hitler likes to call the "new order" in Europe.

Nazi firing squads took the lives of 24 more Hollanders, the Netherlands radio announced, bringing to 96 the number of alleged secret anti-German conspirators accused of plotting to pave the way for an Allied invasion. As a "warning to all" the Germans announced officially the execution of 16 persons in Vilna, the former Polish city, for plotting with Russian secret agents to sabotage Nazi supply lines. This group killed one policeman in resisting arrest.

Chief of Security. (Foreign observers here believed the assumption of the post of chief of security in Paris by General Oberg, a high SS (Blackshirt Elite Guard) leader, accounted for intensified methods of shooting hostages and deporting others in an effort to combat French underground resistance in occupied areas. (Oberg is "vice representative of Supreme Chief of Police Himmler.")

(The latest report of action against French hostages, distributed by the British Reuters news agency "from the French frontier," said 40 faced death from a firing squad for the killing of two German soldiers in the Seine Inferieure department. It was not known if they had yet been shot.) Political dissension in Norway developed to the point of a split among Quisling's party members. A number of Norwegians have been arrested and sent to concentration camps and German police are reinforced, especially at Stavanger and Haugesund, where many erstwhile Quislingists quit the party and tried to demonstrate.

Coup Attempted. One account filtering out of Oslo said an anti-Quisling group within the Nazi puppet premier's party tried to stage a coup and oust him.

(The Norwegian exile government in London issue an 8,000-word document charging German occupation authorities in Norway had established a concentration camp at Joerdstaden where 700 school teachers were systematically tortured "to break them physically and spiritually." Five hundred obstinate teachers were declared shipped off to forced labor in the Arctic.

(Even the local Quisling doctor who examined teachers aboard their Arctic-bound ship reported many were suffering from pneumonia, hemorrhages and gastric ulcers, the document related. (This account drew a picture of the teachers being aroused at 6 a. m., given one slice of bread for breakfast and put through hard gymnastic exercises on the double.

("In one of the exercises," it said, "the teachers were compelled to crawl on their stomachs through icy slush with their hands behind their backs. One group was ordered to crawl this way behind camp latrines.")

Popular Rising. (These repressive measures, the statement concluded, resulted from "nothing less than a popular rising against Nazism of such dimensions it puts in the shade everything else that has happened.") In the midst of the anti-Nazi activities in Norway, the Norwegian Gestapo chief and Quisling's minister of justice conferred in Berlin on "procedure in Norway

Dutch, Norwegian Ships Also Torpedoed, Navy Announces.

By The Associated Press. Survivors of a British ship revealed last night that a submarine attacked them within a mile and a half of an Atlantic beach, the explosion bringing hundreds of people to watch.

Captain Charles E. Rosendahl, in charge of the Navy's lighter-than-air craft, told the House Naval Committee in Washington that there was "a great deal of submarine activity off the coast of Florida and some in the Gulf of Mexico."

The Mexican navy ministry also took notice of the German operations in Gulf waters by instructing their merchant ships to keep lights burning at night and the Mexican flag flying by day. One Mexican newspaper reported that a tanker met a German submarine in the Gulf and "saluted the Nazi vessel and that they perished along with other seamen trapped below decks when a torpedo struck without warning."

A medium sized Norwegian ship and a large Panamanian merchant vessel have been torpedoed in the Atlantic, the Navy announced, and survivors have been landed at an east coast port.

and resistance of the population there." Budapest reported one person executed and a number of others given long prison sentences for an unsuccessful attempt to blow up a Hungarian factory.

The Hungarian newspaper Pester Lloyd said in another dispatch that one Czech was killed and another got away after shooting a policeman who caught them preparing to dynamite a railroad near Prague.

Down in the Balkans a new Rumanian commission was invested with special police powers to cope with "economic sabotage."

The Bulgarian government issued a stern warning in Sofia that sharp measures would follow under a newly named commissioner of supply, whose job includes supplying the home front and contributing a share of the food production to Axis armies.

Jury Selected For Trial of Madeline Webb

Model Suffers From Indisposition in Afternoon Session.

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP)—Selection of a jury to decide the fate of Madeline Webb, 28-year-old model, Eli Shonbrun and John D. Cullen, charged with the strangulation slaying of Mrs. Susan Reich, was completed today before Judge Jonah J. Goldstein in General Sessions court.

Court was recessed briefly during the afternoon session when Miss Webb, who had appeared pale and extremely nervous, suffered from a stomach indisposition. A physician from the district attorney's office administered bicarbonate of soda and Miss Webb recovered quickly.

When the last juror was chosen, all three defendants relaxed noticeably. James Springer, Stillwater (Okla.) lawyer, who came here to help defend the Oklahoma-born model, smiled reassuringly at the pallid girl.

During the day, the dark-haired Miss Webb had passed frequent notes to the 33-year-old Shonbrun, alleged by the state to be her lover, who had exchanged occasional smiles. Outside the courtroom, in one recess, the two embraced and kissed.

"Don't forget I love you," Shonbrun said in the hearing of guards. The guards said Miss Webb replied: "I love you."

Shonbrun, Miss Webb and Cullen, 45, are accused of the March slaying of Mrs. Reich, 55, a Polish refugee who was the wife of a New Jersey manufacturer. Mrs. Reich was found strangled in a Hotel Sutton suite.

Testimony will begin tomorrow.

Man Confesses To Strangling Bride

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP)—Dapper Nathaniel Ballenberg, 33, will be led to a hanging May 21 in the strangling of his pretty bride during their first tiff.

Booked on homicide charges early today after he had given up, Ballenberg calmly told Assistant District Attorney Louis A. Pagnucco:

"It was just one of those things. I feel relieved talking to you. I had an argument with my wife. We had never quarreled before. I punched her and I choked her. I didn't know she was dead."

His 26-year-old bride's body was found in their comfortably furnished apartment yesterday—her throat gouged and scratched, marks about the face and one eye blackened.

Nazi Lunges Broken. Red infantrymen were said to have broken the first German lunge and to have sent the Nazis reeling back to their original positions in all but one sector of the 12-mile front.

Sixty-two of the destroyed German planes were identified as belonging to the 77th Nazi air squadron. Red airmen swooped down in the Kerch peninsula, camouflaged in the prairie interior of the peninsula.

Further attacks in this area were expected, for it was believed that the German high command regarded the establishment of air bases in the Kerch peninsula as necessary to the success of operations from Tagahrog, above the Sea of Azov, against Rostov and the north Caucasus.

(A British commentator declared the Russians had hurled the German divisions after four days of fierce fighting into which the Germans threw tanks, dive-bombers and low-flying fighters. He said the Germans suffered heavy casualties.)

The Russians said the Germans apparently had three aims in starting a spring offensive on the Kerch peninsula.

1. To take advantage of the terrain which was the first to dry and was the most favorable for early action.

2. To attempt to clean up the Crimea, which has been a thorn in their sides throughout the winter, with Russian garrisons holding out both at Kerch and Sevastopol.

3. To strike toward the Caucasus and its rich oil deposits separated from the Crimea only by the narrow Kerch strait.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda estimated that German reserves of 10,000,000 tons of oil now must be virtually exhausted. It pointed out that Germany needs 19,000,000 tons of oil annually since starting the war against Russia last June 22 and that only 9,000,000 tons are available.

OPTIMISTS MEET. Optimists' Club of Atlanta devoted its luncheon yesterday to a checkup on receipts from its theatrical presentation last week, "The Desert Song," and to plans for entertaining the convention of Optimists' International, to be held in Atlanta July 5 to 8, inclusive. The show, given at the Erlanger theater, was a complete "sell-out" for its three performances and the Optimists' charity fund was well-satisfied.

ATLANTA, GA., MAY 13, 1942.

Inescapable Facts

Many thoughtless and informed leaders in America are becoming more and more alarmed at continued unnecessary waste of rubber by the automobile drivers of the nation. Of course, the forthcoming rationing of gasoline in the states of the eastern seaboard will result in further conservation of rubber in automobile tires, but there will undoubtedly be some who will continue wasteful driving practices, while in the other states there is as yet no fuel limitation to force economy in car-tire-use.

P. W. Litchfield, chairman of the board of directors of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, a man who has spent more than 40 years in the rubber industry and who is closely conversant with all steps for rubber conservation and replacement being taken today, recently wrote a letter in which he gives the basic, inescapable facts in the rubber situation as it affects United States civilian life and the war.

There are four basic facts which must be remembered, writes Mr. Litchfield. These are: First, this is a war of swift movement. The mobility of our mechanized equipment depends in large measure upon rubber treads and tires.

Second, unless our striking force is as swift as that of the enemy we are at a distinct and possibly fatal disadvantage in actual combat. Rubber, therefore, becomes as indispensable as powder and bullets in the winning of the war.

Third, a large percentage of the workers engaged in our war industries must depend upon private transportation to get to and from their jobs.

Fourth, the source of 95 per cent of our normal supply of crude rubber is in Malaya and the East Indies, now held by the Japanese.

Remembering these four basic facts, it is important to analyze, briefly, the actual rubber situation in this country, today.

The normal consumption of rubber, for non-military uses, has been approximately 700,000 tons per year.

We have a national stockpile of crude rubber of that same amount. Seven hundred thousand tons. We can't get any more from our main sources of supply until the war is over and the Japanese are driven back to their own lands.

We must use that 700,000 tons for our own military equipment. Furthermore, we must share it with our allies.

While that stockpile holds out we must push, as rapidly as possible, construction of plants for making synthetic rubber. The problems involved here, however, are such that there is no chance whatever there will be any synthetic rubber within two or three years for tires other than those used on our war machines.

Of reclaimed rubber—taken from scrap—we can expect about 350,000 tons annually for the next three years. Tires made from this product are, of course, inferior in quality. Even so, they will, likewise, be needed for the uses of the military, air and naval forces.

There may be some rubber shipments from Brazil and other Central and South American countries. There are rumors of securing rubber by cultivating milk weed and desert shrubs. All these combined, however, cannot produce enough to be more than a mere drop in the large bucket of need.

The greatest rubber reserve we have is the million tons now in the tires of 30,000,000 privately owned cars. It is vitally important that this be conserved to the utmost. Our war production depends upon the transportation in these tires. As tires wear out, cars become useless and transportation for war workers and other civilians shrinks.

The amount of rubber available is a fixed and known quantity. Is it less than the needs of a country at war. There is not an ounce of rubber to be wasted. Anyone who does waste rubber, either through fast driving, unnecessary driving or in any other manner, is actually weakening the chance of victory for America and the Allied Nations.

It is not a pleasant picture. But it is the truth. It is also the truth that too large a proportion of the American public is still unthinking, does not realize the importance of its part in the war economy. If it did, there would be no pleasure riding on the highways, there would be no cars in the cities with four-fifths of their seating capacity unoccupied.

There are the facts. It is up to us to realize them and organize our ways of life accordingly.

Malta

There have been a number of remarkable parallels in the story of this war as it has been unfolded so far. Not the least of these is found in the cases of Malta and Corregidor. It is devoutly to be hoped, however, that unlike Corregidor, Malta will not be forced to surrender.

The story of Corregidor is, perhaps, more closely parallel to the story of Singapore than it is to Malta. Here were two great fortresses in the Far East. Each had been created to withstand attack from the sea. Each fell by attack from the land, after the enemy in overwhelming superiority in numbers and equipment, had overcome long drawn and stubborn land resistance.

Malta, however, still stands. That little island fortress in the Mediterranean plays a big part in the war in that area. For it prevents the Axis from winning control of the central portion of that enclosed sea which Mussolini has had the mistaken idea of naming Mare Nostrum (Our Sea) while the badly battered Italian fleet hides in its harbors.

While Malta stands, Axis shipping in the Mediterranean is in constant peril from the bombers based there. While Malta stands neither Italy nor Germany can reinforce their armies in Libya with impunity.

It is probable that Malta has withstood a greater pounding, by tonnage, than any other area of like size in all the war. Her people have found refuge in the deep caves below the rocky escarpments. Her antiaircraft guns and planes have been so well able to keep in full action that more than 100 enemy aircraft, attacking, were brought down or damaged in three recent days.

The story of the defense of Malta will go down in history as one of the most heroic and remarkable achievements of the war. No other Allied stronghold, not even the men of Bataan, the besieged of Tobruk or the heroes of Dunkirk have written a grander page in the story of man's fortitude than the defenders of Malta.

Hospital Day

Yesterday, Tuesday, was National Hospital Day. A day set aside on which the people of America learn more about their hospitals, their operation and the services they render to their communities.

On that day many visited the hospitals and discovered how marvelous a place the modern temple of healing is.

Atlanta has excellent hospital facilities, though not enough to care for all her people in case of epidemic or disaster. They are, in fact, generally well filled by the normal need. In time of emergency, however, it would be those hospitals which would be the focal of volunteer work to aid the stricken. It would be to them the city would look for leadership and direction.

Today, with war raging around the world and threatening our own land, the role of the hospital, and its staff, is more vitally acknowledged by all of us than ever before.

Hospital Day has come and gone, for 1942. It would be well, however, if we all made every day, in some degree, a hospital day. That is, a day in which we shall be conscious of the tremendous role hospitalization of today may play in the lives of our loved ones, or our own. And, realizing this, we should ever be willing and eager to contribute whatever aid we can to any movement looking for increase or improvement of the available hospital service in our own city.

Georgia Editors Say:

WHO PAYS THE BILL?

(From The Waycross Georgian)

An incident took place in a small western town recently that contains food for thought. A farmer went into a local pool hall and found a number of shipyard workers playing pool on a week-day holiday. The question arose as to why they were not working, and they told him it was because they could not get double-time pay. The farmer "blew up" and told them what he thought of such demands in this emergency.

They seemed surprised, and said: "What do you care? It doesn't cost you anything. The government pays the bill."

This brings up the question of who pays the factories and workers producing war-time equipment. No one but the hard-pressed taxpayers, including men and women in every walk of life—even the shipyard workers.

Government has no money to pay anybody anything until it first collects it from the people. Every bit of waste by government, industry or labor, comes out of the pockets of the people.

It is a pity that any person thinks government pays for waste or exorbitant charges of any kind—the people pay through the nose in higher and higher taxes.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

FUTURE OF FRANCE WASHINGTON, May 12.—The re-statement of Laval as head of the Nazi-dominated government of Vichy poses a tragic question of what the Allied nations are to do with France after the final victory is won.

So many sins against her former allies have been committed by the Vichy government since the fall of France in 1940 that it is difficult to see how they can be atoned for. It remains only for Laval to complete the picture of treachery by turning over to the Germans the French fleet and other valuable military concessions represented in French outposts in Africa. No one trusts the French to deny these final acts of collaboration.

The score against France is already so overwhelming that no one can see where the peace conference, which is to follow the inevitable victory, will be determined to win, will be tempered with any sympathetic treatment of the French nation in the readjustment of European affairs.

In the first place, despite all of the outward veneer of diplomatic usage, the British, deep down in their hearts, are known to feel very bitter towards the French. They feel that the French let them down sadly, and almost disastrously, both in the manner in which they defended themselves against the German invasion and in their failure to live up to the terms of the solemn agreement between the British and French governments as to the conduct of the war.

For one thing, it was solemnly agreed that neither side would accept a peace without the other's approval. This provision blanketed all minor military considerations, such as the disposition of the French fleet and French colonial possessions. And yet the French government, over the vigorous protest of the British Prime Minister, proceeded to sign an armistice in complete disregard of their formal treaty obligations.

ANOTHER BETRAYAL Any scrupulous observance of the Franco-British treaty called for the delivery of the French fleet and air force to the British immediately as the only honorable thing a fallen ally could do. But the French did none of this. Instead of going to England, a much shorter distance away, large segments of her air force escaped to Africa after France's fall, and the fleet was retained as a trading point with the victorious Germans.

But this was only the beginning of French sins. The record of French contribution to Axis successes constitutes one of the most tragic and disheartening chapters in the war's history. It should not be forgotten that if Japan, abetted by Vichy's complicity, had not secured Indo-China, the war in the Pacific might have been averted. Japan used Indo-China as a steppingstone for her aggressions against the Malay Peninsula and Singapore.

WITH CONSENT OF TRAITORS Otherwise, the British bastion in the South Pacific might never have fallen. Working with the consent of the traitors at Vichy, the tricky little Japanese moved a large army of men to Indo-China before we or the British were aware of their plans.

It should not be forgotten, also, that the Vichy authorities preferred to hand over to the Japanese French ships which were held in Indo-China, instead of allowing them to join the De Gaulle bases in New Caledonia.

Neither is it possible to forget that German Gestapo commissions are operating in metropolitan France, as well as in French colonial possessions, where some of our bomber planes flying the South Atlantic to Africa have been fired on lately. They are in Northern Africa and other outposts where the French flag still flies.

They would have been in Martinique off our own shores but for the alertness of the British in intercepting about a year ago a neutral vessel with some 200 Germans on board—all bound for some secret mission in Martinique.

AIDING NAZI WAR With the collaboration of the Vichy government, the Germans moreover have been able to convert practically all French industry to Nazi war needs. The Renault and Citroen motor car plants at Paris are now engaged in the production and repair of German tanks. Intelligence reports received by British and American authorities show that French aircraft plants and other industries have been similarly converted.

One by one, practically every concession has been made to the Germans by the traitors of Vichy. About the only thing left is the French fleet, which we now expect to fall ultimately into German hands.

Only the other day we witnessed the amazing spectacle of French forces putting up a determined resistance when the British, suspecting a repetition of the Indo-China incident, were compelled to take Madagascar. Some months before that the French executed an equally amazing performance when they successfully resisted British attempts to occupy Dakar.

And yet it is doubtful that the war would have ever started in the beginning without iron-clad pledges of French co-operation with the British. The British would have been forced to stand aside and allow Hitler to run roughshod over Europe. It was to save the skins of the French as much as anything that drew the British into the mess.

DID NOT FIGHT The French did not fight at Sedan, where the Germans made their first breakthrough. Fortifications which were built there to withstand a siege of an invading army, and inflicted the loss of at least 500,000 men in casualties, were actually taken by the Germans with a loss of but 500 men. The French, terrified by the shrieking sirens of dive bomber attacks, threw down their guns, placed their fingers in their ears, and ran for their lives. The British had to fight their way backwards to the sea unaided and execute the war's most dramatic exploit—the escape of 300,000 men from Dunkerque.

These are some of the tragedies of French treachery which are brought into bolder relief by Laval's elevation to Vichy leadership. It will be difficult to forget them at the peace conference.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

It's Only Beginning.

She telephoned me, much perturbed. She has called frequently before. Don't know her name but recognize her voice. She always has some sort of a suggestion. And I think of the thing to do with the war program, with politics, with the general management of the war, and public affairs. Her suggestions are not very practical, as a usual thing.

One week, when she called, her voice was different.

She was in a dither. Almost in tears.

She wanted something done about it. It was a terrible thing. It was an outrage.

Her son, it seemed, had been buying an automobile on the installment plan when the freezing of car sales came along. Then came the freezing of the automobile tires. Now comes rationing of gas. And the car is no use to him at all, in a manner of speaking.

All these rationings of automobiles has made the market for used cars mighty slow.

What's the use of buying a car if you can't get tires when replacements are needed, if you can't get gasoline to operate it?

So son had sold the partially-paid-for car. And it was that loss which was causing all her alarm and excitement. It was outrageous that her son had to suffer financial loss. Something, she repeated, should be done about it.

Aren't We All?

I told her we were all suffering losses and inconveniences because of the war. There is scarcely an acquaintance of mine who couldn't raise a complaint along somewhat similar lines, if they were inclined. But what of it? Aren't we at war?

I told her she was mighty lucky to have her son with her, that there were lots of mothers in America whose sons were dead at Pearl Harbor, in the deep reaches of ocean, beneath some Philippine sod. And I told her a loss on the purchase of an automobile was nothing.

I told her the individual losses and privations we have met so far are as nothing to what is likely to come to us before long.

"My goodness," she exclaimed, "do you mean this kind of thing is going on, maybe for years? I thought it would be all over, and we'd be back to our normal ways of life in a few months."

I disabused her mind and advised her to give devout thanks every day her son was with her and to accept every minor trouble as such that auto was lost as it came, with a grin. For that's what we've got to do if we are going to tackle this war in the proper American way.

Tighten up the old belt and grin as you do it. Accept sacrifice as part of your contribution and remember, always, that what you suffer in loss or inconvenience is as nothing compared to what the boys in the armed services are giving. They're giving themselves, cheerfully. Even though they come out at the end of the war, they will have given years out of their lives and the effect of their war experience will remain with them until they die.

When You Have To Walk.

Will the shortage of gasoline mean that you'll have to walk a couple of miles a day?

The boys in the Army are having to hike 15 miles, two or three times a week, carrying a 60-pound pack on their shoulders. It is part of the toughening process of the Army.

Do you feel get a little sore from unaccustomed walking? Think of the boys in the Army whose feet get so blistered and sore they have to be carried into barracks at the end of a day of hiking and guard duty. Some of them do.

Is your business suffering? Think of the lads who've abandoned their careers entirely, just so

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Hague And Long NEW YORK, May 12.—To return to the subject of the hypocrisy and dishonesty of the bleeding-heart liberal, I would like to recall that although most of the angrier ones whipped themselves into a lathering rage against Frank Hague in Jersey City for running the Communists out of town, not one of these individuals, not any of their little butchers-paper intellectual weeklies, ever took after Huey Long when Huey was riding high.

The explanation was that Huey was building a dictatorship in the name of the proletariat, whereas Hague's dictatorship was of the old-fashioned, political gang type, and was repressive rather than explosive. Hague was much less dangerous than Huey, for his mob appeal obviously would not work beyond his own familiar neighborhood, whereas Huey had driven down his stakes in Arkansas and Mississippi and was drawing sights on Alabama and Georgia. Hague was strictly strong-arm. Huey not only was attended by gunmen and backed by the National Guard and the secret police of his state, who constituted a veritable Gestapo, but had revealed most of the constitutional rights of both his enemies and his unintelligent mass-following by acts of his little Reichstag in Baton Rouge.

They Are Practical But our bleeding-heart professed to regard Huey with amusement only and went belling off on chipmunk hunts, led by a group of New York and Washington lawyers who had a great appetite for the free publicity derived from manifestos and mass meetings. But were not at all humble in their fees in private practice. This kind, when they come down to professional business with a client are very practical men, although, to hear them take on about the rights of the underdog in a celebrated public cause, you might think they hated money. The trick is to get vast lineage of free publicity as a great and avowed defender of the deep principle of justice in a case which is a push-over in the court of public opinion and then sock it to them when the private clients come around crying their troubles.

The bleeding-hearts were forever taking on about Sacco and Vanzetti, but had no time to waste on a friendless lunatic who shot Tony Cernak by mistake and could only explain that he had pains in his stomach. This was no murderer, but just lazy, but they let him go to the chair because he had no political sex appeal.

One Case And Another They went to town on the so-called May Day massacre in Chicago, but the Herrin massacre, which was premeditated and cold-blooded and cost more than twice as many lives, was kissed off as just one of those things which are bound to happen.

The Chicago killings were done by the police, acting under authority of government to preserve order, and the assertion that they were a massacre is disputable. If the conditions were the same as those which were kicked up during the automotive riots in Michigan, which were not strikes but just riots, then the police had to choose between upholding constituted government and surrendering to a mob.

But, in Herrin, not even the bleeding-hearts ever had the nerve to raise any question. The slaughter was a plain massacre and was a union enterprise, and no liberal ever raised a peep on behalf of orderly government and justice, although they all shrieked for the blood of the Chicago cops.

Mission To Destroy I used to go to the meetings of the Newspaper Guild occasionally and it shocked and baffled me to hear men professing to be liberals denounce as rats and traitors and in general as just one of those things against decent, courageous colleagues in the business merely because these others, at the cost of much distress and moral fortitude, refused to do their way. I knew that, on the other hand, many of those who were active in this terror and socially and politically acceptable to our liberal bleeding-hearts were not newspaper people at all, didn't belong with us, were Communists and had no mission but to destroy all freedom among us.

Our liberals became wily politicians who would hide or minimize truths which were embarrassing to their political position or deliberately lie and there is no deliberation of their fall. A liberal should keep out of politics because he can't remain honest, if he ever was. When, in politics, he is confronted with the sins of his own side, he must conceal or try to justify conduct which he would condemn in his opponents and presently he succumbs to the temptation to employ every dirty dishonest trick which he believes they are using against him.

Brother, I know, I have seen them in action. They may serve the nation in the lines of battle. Do you want more than half a pound of sugar a week? Think of the Americans on Corregidor who went days without water to drink and were forced, at the end, to surrender because they had no food at all.

Nothing that happens to an individual matters, today. It is only the nation and the world of which we can think. Personal troubles and lives are as nothing in the cause of victory.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today. From the news columns of Sunday, May 13, 1917: "Washington, May 12.—The first legislative step toward conservation of the nation's food resources was taken tonight by the senate in approving, 38 to 32, an amendment to the advertising espionage bill forbidding during the war the use of cereals or grain in the manufacture of intoxicating liquor." (Editor's note: The amendment was reconsidered and defeated the following day.)

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

"THE SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME" Some months ago I was one of a dozen newspapermen present at a dinner given by executives of General Motors in Detroit, Mich. It was a small, informal dinner which, after coffee, became a sort of forum. Most of the talk centered about the person of "Boss" Kettering, engineer and inventor extraordinary. (He invented the self-starter, high-octane gas, and dozens of other things which are a part of our life.)

He told us that night that an invention had been perfected which was even then going into production, which would, he believed, mean the doom of the submarine. He could not say, of course, what it was.

He also said that tremendous developments had taken place in the field of radio and television which would become commercial developments after the war.

He told us that England, and this country, had developed a phase of radio which would greatly reduce the danger from bombing attacks.

It was just four weeks after this night that England announced the installation, and success, of her new radio detector, which enabled her to learn of the approach of bombers while they were 50 or 100 miles away.

So, that news, when it came, made all of us who had been present that evening, sit up and stare with eyes the size of eggs, sunny-side-up.

There hasn't been time to manufacture, install and train crews in the operation of the new antisubmarine device, whatever it may be. But there has been about time to get it on a few ships with a few trained crews. I expect, soon, to stare again with bug-eyed intensity at some new development.

We already have got some brand-new equipment on planes and ships which make the exploits of Superman seem fairly simple. You may recall that we laughed at the comic strips which showed our men of the future as looking into magic glasses and seeing what was happening thousands of miles away.

Well, we have got one we can look into and see what is 50 and 100 miles away. I've seen it, but it is secret and can't be told as yet.

BOSS KETTERING Mr. Kettering said that the last war was the stimulus which really made radio. Until the demands of the war came along, radio wasn't much. He also said that shortages were not important except, perhaps, temporarily.

Most of the things which seem to be important now, chrome, stainless steel, and dozens of new alloys and metals, all grew out of research in the last war. Tungsten, magnesium and other metals are new. So new, indeed, we really haven't begun to use them well.

We see already that new scientists are coming forward with new plans for making synthetic rubber. A dentist, with a sideline of chemistry experiments, has made synthetic rubber out of grain, natural gas and wood. Ordinary cooking gas is one of the elements of the synthetic rubber.

War produces new materials undreamed of before war made its demands.

"Boss" Kettering's philosophy is—"Never say something can't be done. Say, instead, that as yet no way has been found to do it."

"OUT OF A SOW'S EAR" Just to keep the record straight, "Boss" Kettering and his crowd actually made a real silk purse out of a sow's ear, thus causing the maker of the epigram to the contrary to whirl in his grave.

We are going to have another industrial revolution when war is done—akin to the one produced by the steam engine and later by dat ol' debil, the internal combustion gasoline engine.

Before the war output of magnesium was 4,000 tons. It now is forecast at 300,000 tons. (The Department of Justice charges that in the past the output and the price were controlled by a cartel with Germany.)

In the future the price will be low and the supply ample. The basic supply of copper, lead, zinc and nickel combined are only about one-twentieth as plentiful as magnesium. A square mile of sea water contains tons of it.

Aluminum is twice as abundant as iron. Before the war there was only one producer of aluminum. There now are four.

Aluminum is a light metal, much lighter than iron or steel. Magnesium is one-third lighter than aluminum.

Ever hear of beryllium?

It is a third lighter than magnesium. And as strong. Magnesium develops a strength of 600,000 pounds per square inch.

New metals, new uses, new sources, greatly increased production, spot welding, new gases for fuel, all these, plus the new inventions, mean something for the future.

What Is Sauce for the Little Geese Must Be Sauce for the Big Gander

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

One incident that helped to end the abomination of NRA was the prosecution of a poor little tailor for not charging enough for pressing a pair of pants. While big shots were violating every law of God and man to fill their pockets, this persecution of a helpless little nobody seemed an outrage. People laughed about it, but their laughter was bitter.

Americans are natural partisans of the under-dog, and this inbred feeling prompts them to resent and hate any favoritism or class privilege that provides one rule for the rich and another for the poor.

They hated Prohibition because it forced the poor to drink poison or nothing while the rich and powerful—including officials who enforced the law—were still able to buy good liquor.

Before Jefferson's time the law recognized two classes. If a gentleman offended in a certain particular, he was fined; if a common man committed the same offense, he was whipped.

There is no such flagrant discrimination now, but still the big fellow fares better than the little fellow. And that situation can do more than anything else to injure morale.

Mr. Leon Henderson recently gave public warning that chiselers who did not obey rationing rules would be "hit hard and fast." That is the kind of toughness required to win the war, and the people have long pleaded for it.

But it isn't manifested by all branches of the government. When two of our biggest steel producers deliberately and brazenly violated priorities rules, without regard for our war needs, nobody was hit hard and fast. There was no punishment at all. If the government does anything, it will try to get a court order to forbid further violations. The steel companies are too big and necessary to push around.

Suggestion comes from a friend who hesitates to stick his neck out that this institution of influence if any address an open letter to Oscar Strauss, director of the registered office of OPA—Office of Price Administration.

"Ask him to ration seats on the Oglethorpe and Buckhead trackless trolley lines," suggested this timorous correspondent. "And issue priority cards to us oldtimers."

"You and I have been riding those routes since the original rails were laid. We've sort of come accustomed to traveling sitting down. And we could, except in the height of rush hours."

"But what now? Those cars are being so filled with portly bankers and big shot lawyers and financiers and realtors that we old regulars just don't have a chance. Theaters, when virtually sold out to the last row, always hold out a few seats for regular customers—up to the last minute. During the recent limitations on gasoline the dealers usually could find a few gallons in the tank for a regular buyer."

"I don't know whether Mr. Arkwright, operating a public service corporation, could make distinctions. Maybe Mr. Strauss can't. But the next time I see one of these new tycoons occupying a seat on the bus I'm going to sit in his lap. If he has a lap."

Speaking for myself, I cannot wholly agree with my correspondent. Coming into town, as I usually do, about 9:30 a. m. I welcome the opportunity to mix and mingle with the Gold Coast set. Within the past week I have conversed with dignitaries I have rarely seen except when covering a public dinner or trying to explain why a note should be renewed. Riding in at that hour, there usually is an ideal situation. Every seat is occupied by at least one passenger from the social register region somewhat north and west of my domicile.

We Oldtimers Demand Priority of Seats On Trolley Buses

This forces me to seat myself, with due apologies, next to a gentleman trying to read the Wall Street Journal as the bus bumps the bumps. He abandons the attempt and inquires about newspaper life and adventure, in which he has slight interest. I, in courteous return, ask how steel closed the day before, a matter which affects my life infinitesimally. So a beautiful friendship is formed.

But I'll compromise. I'll vote for oldtimer priority going home in the afternoons. But I want to continue this new found association with folk from the right side of the tracks—or Peachtree road.

Since typing the above I went out for a sandwich. Returning, I paused for a traffic light. Waiting by the curb was a limousine of late model and the most costly of American makes. At the wheel was a chauffeur in livery. In the rear seat sat a gentleman of high position whom I know very well—much better, I think, than he knows me. He was deep in thought. Possibly wondering about that proposal to limit all incomes to $25,000 a year, net.

As the light changed to green a man in overalls passed, observed the car and its occupants, and spoke through the open window. "Ride while you can, big boy," he remarked to the magnate. "You won't be ridin' long."

Our Georgia boys certainly are seeing the world—and not wholly through a porthole.

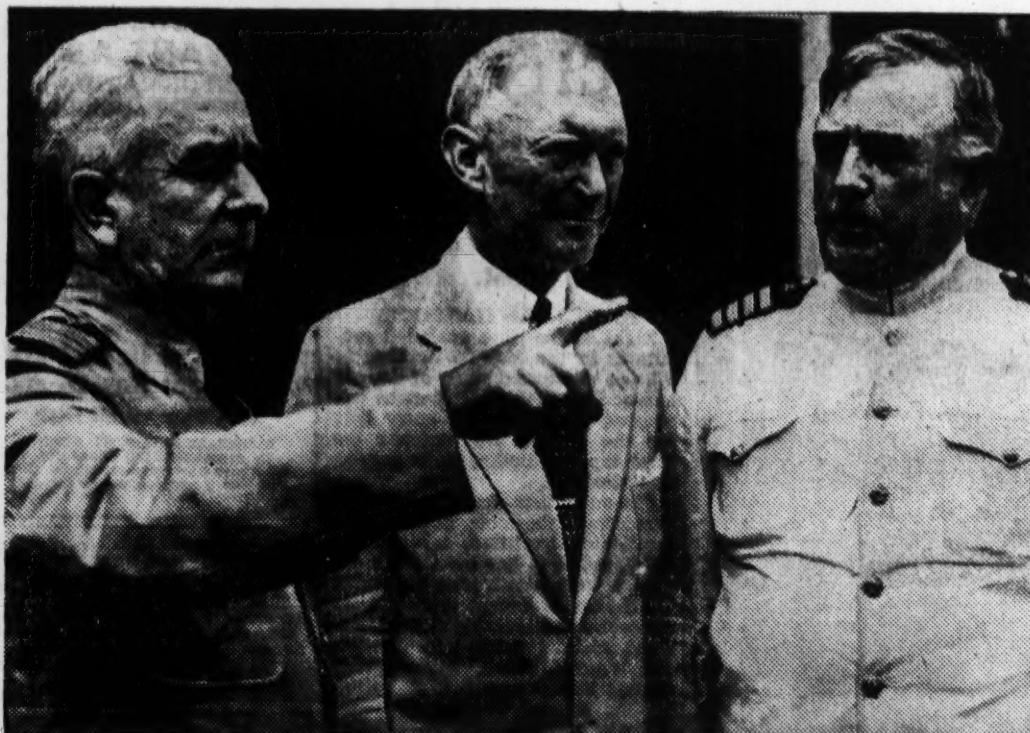

It is one of my duties to take charge of a stack of publicity "releases" mailed in under government frank from posts scattered from Oregon to Florida, from Maine to California.

They contain mimeographed blanks about the post and the benefits of this or that particular branch of the service, from coast artillery to the armored forces. I am gaining somewhat of a military education about the ramifications of different jobs. When I was growing up there were just three—infantry, cavalry and Marines. Oh, yes, I'd forgotten the coast artillery.

The blanks are filled in with the names and addresses of Georgia boys, "selectees" or volunteers, who have arrived, been graduated from a class, promoted to corporal or sergeant or perhaps commissioned.

I recognize a lot of the names, especially those of Atlantans. If I don't know the lads I know their parents. If every other state has as many representatives scattered around the nation we're building right smart of an Army and Navy. World War No. 1—perhaps even the Spanish War—broke up all the traditions of "Fifth Georgia Regiment" or "Second Illinois."

Probably a good idea. There could be intense rivalry between a Georgia outfit and one from Louisiana which may have given them more fighting spirit. But not efficiency—not under present war conditions. They pick a man best qualified for a certain job—and where he was born matters only to the records.

Fund Created To Buy New and Used Tires

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP) Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones announced today creation of a $150,000,000 fund for the purchase of new and used tires now owned by consumers.

Omitting details of the purchase plan, Jones said further plans would be made public later after being worked out by the Office of Price Administration and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The purchasing agency will be the Defense Supplies Corporation, a subsidiary of the RFC.

Wild Ducks Stage Street Fight, Hold Up Traffic

BOSTON, May 12.—(AP)—Two wild ducks selected one of the busiest street intersections in the city for a furious battle today which ended only after one combatant turned up its webbed toes. A call to police headquarters was misunderstood and a cruising car and patrol wagon were sent in.

the belief two "drunks" were fighting. The officers found traffic badly tangled by motorists who halted to witness the fray. Sergeant Frank Mullen captured the victor and accompanied it to the Boston public garden lagoon, where grateful quacks were his reward.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

HOMOSASSA.

Mr. Hudson took me down to Homosassa last week. It was a grand experience—a week out of a hearing of a telephone, a radio, a committee meeting, etc.

I have before tried to make it clear in this column that Homosassa must be seen to be appreciated. I don't if Dickens would have attempted to describe Homosassa. One must go there to have any adequate idea of the quiet beauty of the place.

And to be in such a place with a friend makes the picture perfect—a friend with whom you may sit in a boat for hours without speaking and yet have perfect fellowship. A place where nature is undisturbed in her glorious arrangement of grasses, flowers, trees, water, sky—where birds and animals and fish abound. A place where the sun, moon and stars may be seen. That is Homosassa. Some day there will be a book written about Homosassa. I hope I may live to read that book. It will begin with the Indian traditions. It will trace the romantic story of the seamen who ventured in and out of the channel. It will have a chapter or two about the spring which boils up in the cluster of majestic trees, forming one of the prettiest rivers that ever flowed to the sea. There will be a chapter about the geological formations that may be seen at the bottom of the deep, blue water and along the banks of the river. There will be a chapter about the wide variety of fish in the river and the neighboring rivers, lakes and gulf. And one, of course, on the bird life of the deep swamps and marshes. There will be a chapter on the keys that stand sentinel along the coast, guarding the mouth of the three rivers.

But I imagine that the book will be largely a story of the people who have lived in the queer, quiet little fishing village for two centuries. Some of them have journeyed a few miles from Homosassa. Most of them were satisfied to be born and dwell and die, like their fathers, in that village on that river that flows into that sea. Their story will be told.

Did we catch any fish? We certainly did. I have never seen the bass fishing better, and there are bream by the million, with sufficient sheephead to exhaust your supply of hooks and sinkers, and the trout on the flats are larger than usual, and very game. We ran into a few schools of skip jack, cavalla, blue runners, and so forth. And the tarpon are rolling.

The fishing on the outside has been definitely affected by the bombing target practice. Whether the explosion of the big guns has frightened away the fish, or whether many of them have been killed, I do not know. We did find the fishing outside not so good as usual. Also, there are definite limitations on the distance you may go out in fishing boats. It was a grand week—the sort of week one may only have at Homosassa.

Brazil Reports U. S. Sank 'German Pirate'

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 12.—(AP)—The newspaper A Noite quoted official circles as saying today that the submarine which torpedoed the 6,692-ton Brazilian steamer Parnahyba near Trinidad last month had been sunk by United States naval planes.

"There is no doubt that the waters which have been a theater of sinkings are being transformed into a cemetery of the German pirates," A Noite added.

Admiral Foote Visits Atlanta Naval Office

Will Establish New Procurement Branch in Texas.

The Navy yesterday prepared to cut tape and politics in procurement of material, and Admiral P. W. Foote, who invaded rock-ribbed Republican Pennsylvania before it ever swayed to the New Deal, was in Atlanta yesterday making plans to establish a new material procurement office for the southwestern section of the United States at Houston.

Admiral Foote, however, had a good political background before he was named commissioner of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, and cut the vehicle death rate for that state 35 per cent by refusing to fix tickets and enforcing rigidly a 50-mile-an-hour speed law. He served for three years as aide to Josephus Daniels, who was secretary of the Navy during the Wilson administration.

Inspection Visit. The new procurement boss will remain in Atlanta for the next several days inspecting the southern district office here, which is under the command of Captain Roe Reed Adams. He said he then will proceed to Houston, where he will have charge of procurement materials in Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

In streamlining procurement activities, the federal government has decided to decentralize the Atlanta office and create another for the southwestern section to expedite the work.

Captain Adams will remain in charge of the Atlanta district, while Admiral Foote will command the Houston division. Yesterday Admiral Foote was honor guest at a luncheon at the Capital City Club. Captain J. V.

Babcock, commandant of the ROTC unit at Georgia Tech and who was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1901 in Admiral Foote's class, was present. Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution, also attended. Captain Adams was graduated from the naval school in 1902.

North Carolinian. Admiral Foote is a North Carolinian. His family now live at Chapel Hill. "We are going to do as good a job as possible," Admiral Foote said. "There is little we can say except that we are to provide for naval requirements and see that every article accepted is according to specifications."

The office will be in charge of purchasing all naval equipment available in the southwestern section of the country.

"One office was too taxed to do an effective job for the entire south, and thus the southwestern office is being established," Captain Adams said. "We believe our job will be done better under the new arrangement."

Stephen J. West Will Leave Estate to Wife

The late Stephen J. West, of the West Lumber Company, left all his property, except his guns, a ring and a gold watch and chain, to his wife, Mrs. Mary Clarke Russell West, according to his will filed yesterday with the Fulton county ordinary.

The items excepted were left to his son, Russell J. West.

Cold Storage Meats In U. S. Show Decline

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP) Reflecting shipment of large quantities to Great Britain and Russia, cold storage stocks of frozen and cured meats declined 154,700,000 pounds during the past 12 months. The Agriculture Department, reporting this today, said stocks of meats on May 1 totaled 811,362,000 pounds, compared with 966,061,000 on the corresponding date last year. However, the May 1 stocks were slightly larger than the 1937-41 average of 787,666,000 pounds.

WAR Requires FULLER USE Of TROLLEYS And BUSES

ATLANTA, like every other American city with a wartime transportation problem, is expected to make the greatest possible use of existing public transit vehicles. Joseph B. Eastman, Director of the Office of Defense Transportation, has summarized the problem in these words:

"Construction of these vehicles requires materials that would otherwise be available for direct war production, and the War Production Board will be reluctant to allow the materials to be so used. The Office of Defense Transportation must take into consideration, in recommending such action by the War Production Board, the extent to which the community concerned has taken steps to make greater use of what it now has through the development and adoption of plans for the effective staggering of hours to relieve transportation conditions."

In addition, Director Eastman recently issued a statement of policy, which all public authorities and transit companies are asked to follow, in order to accomplish the utmost saving of rubber and other materials essential to war production. Although the policies outlined may cause minor inconvenience to some Atlantans, the national interest at this critical time demands our willing cooperation. The main points are given below.

6 Proposals for the Emergency

STAGGERED HOURS — This receives first attention. "A carefully prepared plan of staggering working, store and office hours offers by far the greatest opportunity for increasing the carrying capacity of existing transit vehicles. . . . In communities where the number of buses required in the rush hours can be reduced by opening schools at a later hour, public officials and transit operators should cooperate to attain this objective."

TRAFFIC CONTROL — The Office of Defense Transportation recommends that during the emergency trolleys and buses be given precedence over private automobiles in the regulation of street traffic and that traffic signals be timed to provide for the most efficient movement of transit vehicles.

NO EXTENSIONS OF LINES — Creation of new bus lines or extensions of existing lines is opposed except when such new service is required for military purposes or war production.

NO CHARTERED BUSES — Special, unscheduled bus service no longer may be provided for recreational and other unessential purposes. Chartered buses are approved only to carry war workers or "to meet similar situations where failure to provide such service will have a definitely unfavorable effect on the war effort."

FEWER STOPS — The ODT recommends that the number of trolley and bus stops be reduced wherever possible. "A reasonable standard is to space stops at distances of 660 to 1,200 feet."

FULL USE OF STREET CARS — Tire wear can be reduced by letting street cars do as much of the job as possible, with possible discontinuance of bus service in any area that could be served by an existing rail line.

There is no question but that staggering of hours can do much more to relieve Atlanta's transportation difficulties than any other single measure. The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce is now preparing a staggered hours plan, which will need your support when it is submitted to the public.

We have already put into effect the restrictions on bus line extensions and chartered bus service in cooperation with federal authorities. The proposals concerning traffic control, fewer stops and possible bus route changes are matters that may have to be considered later by public officials and this Company.

Atlanta, we believe, is ready and willing to cooperate in any step that is essential to American victory.

Pleasure Trips Believed Out For Duration

Ticket Sellers Soon To Decide If Travel Is Essential.

Travel for pleasure—whether by train, plane or bus—appears to be out for the duration of the war.

Transportation companies are not soliciting people to travel while on vacation. They are urging everyone to co-operate with them so that men in the armed forces can be accommodated.

It appears to be the beginning of a strict rationing of all transportation seats. In the near future ticket sellers will be asking prospective riders "are you going home?" or "is there serious illness or death in the family?"

If you can't answer "yes" to these, then you will stay where you are for you will be refused a ticket, transportation experts said yesterday.

Spirit Praised.
And in the meantime—
"Try to arrange your trips for the first of the week—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—so that soldiers on short weekend furloughs won't be inconvenienced," bus and railroad officials urged the public yesterday.

The fine spirit shown by the public in this troublesome, unavoidable delays occurred was praised by several executives.

G. M. Lawrence, general passenger agent in the southeast for the Southern Railway, said many a person used to a drawing room, compartment or a bedroom hopped into an upper berth uncomplainingly. Jim Cobb, of Delta Air Lines, said civilians appeared glad to give way to Uncle Sam. Cobb said 80 per cent of the business came from the armed forces or from persons directly engaged in the war effort. He said there were waiting lists on practically all flights.

Schedules Changed.
In an effort to save gasoline and tires, W. F. Arlington, regional manager of Southeastern Greyhound Lines, said schedules had been changed, slowing down service slightly. He said on some runs it was necessary for seven or eight buses to be used to take care of the passengers.

With the season approaching for western trips travel agencies fear that few will be made. Bus lines and railroads expect, or rather hope, that short hauls will make up the difference. With everyone trying to save tires they believe that many short trips to the mountains or coast—which ordinarily would be made by automobile—will be made by bus or train.

But whether civilians travel or not, transportation companies still have a steady customer—Uncle Sam.

T. H. Wingfield Succumbs at 77

T. H. Wingfield, 77, retired railway mail clerk, died suddenly yesterday morning at the residence, 270 Winter avenue, Decatur.

Wingfield, born in Washington, Ga., was connected with the railway mail service for 43 years before he retired several years ago. Since his retirement he had managed the local Railway Mail Clerks' Credit Union. He was a deacon in the Oakhurst Baptist church and a Mason.

Surviving are his wife; a sister, Mrs. Kate Chafin, of Washington, Ga., and a brother, J. B. Wingfield, of Umatilla, Fla.

Funeral services will be held at 1 o'clock this afternoon at the Oakhurst Baptist church with the Rev. A. B. Couch officiating. Burial will be in Washington, Ga.

Father To Baptize 8-Year-Old Girl

The Rev. Joe W. Burton, secretary of education of the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board, and a member of the Inman Park Baptist church, will baptize his eight-year-old daughter, Mary Lu, at a special service at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the church.

Dr. S. F. Lowe, pastor, said it required special action of the church to allow Mr. Burton to baptize his daughter, since the pastor is the regularly authorized person to baptize.

Variety Marks Queries Asked In Gas Listing

School Teachers Busy Answering Questions About Rationing.

Questions pouring in to school teachers and state and government rationing offices ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous, but the experts somehow found an answer for them all.

Among the pertinent problems propounded were the following: Q. Can the owner of several cars get gasoline for them all? A. Yes, a rationing card will be issued for each passenger vehicle. Trucks do not need them.

Q. What about government cars for which there is no ownership registration certificate? A. Actually cars with the name of the government agency painted on them and with government license plates do not need ration cards, but to be safe the person who usually drives the vehicle may get an X card by pointing out the machine to the registrar.

Q. If a man is away from home at the time of registration and does not have his ownership certificate with him what can he do? A. He can apply to the nearest motor vehicle license bureau representative, the sheriff in most Georgia counties, and get a temporary ownership certificate, which he must later replace with the correct one from the state license bureau.

Q. How soon can one make an appeal to the rationing board? A. Wait until registration is over unless it is an emergency.

Q. Does a man traveling in several states need several rationing cards? No. One card is good in any state where gasoline is being rationed. In states where it is not being rationed it may be bought without use of the card after the vehicle is 50 miles away from the border of a rationed state.

Q. What about motorcycles? A. They must secure rationing cards, just like automobile cards, but the unit value for them is only about 40 per cent of that for automobiles.

Explosion Kills 3 Miners, Fear 37 More Dead

OSAGE, W. Va., May 12.—(AP)—A terrific blast deep in a big West Virginia coal mine apparently took 40 lives today, with three bodies recovered and the word of rescue workers there was almost no hope for 37 others trapped underground.

Seventy men escaped death when they fled from the workings. Oxygen-helmeted rescuers coming out of the mine reported the operation badly shattered near the center of the explosion and said it might be many hours before more bodies were brought out.

T. E. Griffith, United States Bureau of Mines engineer, who acted as spokesman for the Christopher Coal Company, confirmed that there were 110 men in the pit when the disaster occurred about 2:30 p. m.

The three bodies were recovered by members of four mine rescue teams—working in shifts at the task of clearing away rock, coal and timbers—were found near the main driveway.

The best estimates were that an estimated 30 of the mechanized mine, one of the biggest producers in northwestern West Virginia, was effected.

The bodies removed were identified as: Nick Nimecheck, 23, address unknown; Fred Monge, about 35, of Osage; Jack Jones, Negro, 28, of Granville.

8 Candidates In City Race Speak at Rally

Entry List Closes With Nine Seeking Mayor's Post.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.
Eight of the nine qualified candidates in the May 27 election to fill the unexpired term of former Mayor Roy Lee Crowl tonight celebrated the closing of entry lists for the contest and entered the final lap, predicting their respective elections.

The entry lists closed at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but no new candidates qualified, leaving the field just as it has been for more than a week—with nine aspirants.

All entries except James Vickers spoke at a meeting at the Kirkwood school sponsored by the Second Ward Alliance, over which George Brown presided.

Special Courtesy.
Six of the speakers were called in alphabetical order, but the other two—James R. Bachman, retired businessman, and Mayor George B. Lyle, who reside in that section of the city—were given the final addresses as a special courtesy to them.

Alderman G. Dan Bridges, first speaker, told the audience he has lived in Atlanta for 35 years at Grant street and Augusta avenue, that he has been in business there for 26 years. He said he voted against the $5,000,000 which the Hardfield administration added to city revenues to retire a $3,000,000 deficit. He also hit the transaction through which the city acquired Hurt park, saying he also opposed that.

Former Mayor William B. Hartfield, second speaker, said he inherited a $3,000,000 deficit from a former administration, and that the city's credit was imperiled. He said an increase in city revenues was the only method through which the credit could be re-established, the deficit paid and the city could be placed on a cash basis.

He also recounted how he ousted the former chief of police, "making good on that promise." He said he is proud of Hurt park, that the city is a big business and that someone with experience should be designated to fill the unexpired term.

"If you don't think we made a good trade in Hurt park, just look at the old city hall site now," he added.

Would Cut Frills.
Councilman Howard Haire, next speaker, said he was not the savior of the people "and I'm not a financial wizard, but I think we should cut out some of the unnecessary frills of government and reduce governmental costs."

He said his election and an honest, constructive administration of progress.

Dewey L. Johnson, who appeared next, said Hartfield all ways told audiences "somebody is trying to flyby me."

Johnson took a swipe at the former chief of police, saying in the 1940 primary, entitled "Atlanta at Work," Johnson said Hartfield was claiming all the credit for the major projects, but that when the picture was made Hartfield forgot to remove the "W" from the picture.

The speaker then said he will fight for reduced insurance rates, for rigid milk inspection to insure good milk, facilities for fighting social diseases.

Frank H. Reynolds, who went to bat by saying he has served in council for 20 years, reviewed his business record and added, "I tried to get the former administration not to have hiding policy."

Facts Factionalism.
Councilman John A. White followed Reynolds by saying the candidates think the mayor's race is a popularity contest when the "fate of the nation is hanging in the balance." He said he was the first entry, but the politician didn't like me and they put a lot of stalking horses in the race against me. He charged that the former administration had forced DeKalb county to build a water system which will cost the city government about $300,000 a year in lost revenues. Factionalism in the police department was scored. Bachman replied to a citation by Hartfield that Bachman had introduced him with praise in the 1940 race and now is opposing him by saying "Hartfield."

Hartfield appeared as a visitor "in our section I perjured myself like a gentleman."

Pawn of Politics.
"The tax dollar became the pawn of politics in the former administration," Bachman said. "There was discord and divided councils, and no business can survive under those conditions." He hit the acquisition of the Hurt Park site by the city, but said Bridges refused to vote for it.

Lyle related how he had closed the midnight motion picture shows in Atlanta, in a matter of hours, "after they had been run for years over the protests of parents, Parent-Teacher Associations and other interested in the welfare and morals of the youth of Atlanta."

"I haven't been campaigning before because I have been busy being your mayor," he said. "In other governments the second in line steps up when there is a vacancy. I am confident I will be named as your next mayor."

Marine Film Promoter Joins Leathernecks

Publicity Man Yields to Super-Recruiter's Persuasion.

You've heard of dog bites man—well, turn it around and you've got the United States Marines.

George Bannan, 33-year-old super promotion and publicity man for Twentieth Century-Fox Film Company, in past months has been traveling about the country selling the Marine Corps to the public in connection with the motion picture "To the Shores of Tripoli."

Today the same George Bannan leaves Atlanta for Parris Island, S. C., as a "boot" in the Marines. The story began in Dallas, Texas, some weeks ago. Bannan, working directly with the Marines in connection with this Marine picture, spent most of his time in Marine headquarters.

In Dallas he met then Major John D. O'Leary, officer in charge of the Marine Corps recruiting in Dallas and the surrounding area. O'Leary, known for his recruiting abilities, "went to work" on Bannan.

Bannan left Dallas, went to St. Paul, Minneapolis and many other middle west and southern cities—finally coming to Atlanta. His second day here O'Leary reported for duty as officer in charge of all southern recruiting for the Marine Corps as lieutenant colonel.

Bannan was in Atlanta a week—but that was all Colonel O'Leary needed.

The pay-off came when super-promotion man Bannan bowed in defeat to super-recruiter O'Leary and made preparations to join the Marines. He's thoroughly sold. Promotion of the motion picture in Mac- and Augusta wound up Bannan's publicity career, for the time being, last week. He's on the way to Parris Island, and then—perhaps "To the Shores of Tripoli."

Children Must Be Five To Enter Kindergarten

Atlanta school children must be at least five years old before they enter kindergarten in the future, the Atlanta board of education decided yesterday.

They, however, may become registrants the first school quarter after they pass their fifth birthday.

The board authorized the purchase of about 7,000 tons of coal for heating schools next winter at an aggregate cost of about $34,000, and approved recommendations of the board's building and grounds committee that applications be filed with federal authorities for priorities on critical materials needed to rebuild the fire-razed Maddox Junior High school and to construct a new Murphy Junior High school building.

A special meeting of the board of education this month to adopt a 1942-43 school calendar, probably will be asked, Dr. Willis A. Sutton, school superintendent, said.

SOLDIER TRANSFERRED. DULUTH, Ga., May 12.—Private Coleman Lee Davis, United States Marines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe W. Davis, of Duluth, has been transferred from Parris Island, S. C., to Quantico, Va.

R. L. Ditmars, Popularizer of Snake, Is Dead

Bronx Zoo Curator Was Reptile's Best Friend.

NEW YORK, May 12.—(P)—Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, the man who popularized the lowly snake so that the public could face one without flinching, died today. The curator of reptiles at the Bronx zoo had been ill in St. Luke's hospital for three months.

The cause of death was not announced, but hospital authorities said it was not connected with his work.

He spent most of his 65 years befriending the snake and chasing superstition out of his garden of reptiles. If he wasn't up at the zoo explaining what was new in the animal kingdom he was probably off in South America chasing down a bushmaster.

Bed for Snake. Dr. Ditmars eschewed showmanship, but the very nature of his life work resulted in some amazing moments. In March, 1931, he was confronted with the problem of transferring a 14-foot king cobra, largest of poisonous snakes, to the zoo in Washington.

He finally solved the matter by taking a Pullman berth for himself and the cobra—and delivering his quarry in person.

He obtained great satisfaction in brushing off the incredulous tales with which an incredulous public showered him. Examples:

He denied as "absolutely impossible" the alleged existence for 31 years of a horned toad sealed in a courthouse cornerstone once reported found in New York.

Master Stalker. He labeled the rattlesnake's poison as "paralyzing, not necessarily killing."

And he warned people against emulating a North Carolina preacher who said he let a rattler bite him so that he could be cured by faith.

"More likely a good constitution," Dr. Ditmars said dryly. Few men could emulate Dr. Ditmars as a stalker of the bushmaster, most deadly of the poison-bearing snakes.

Every time he returned from his strange visits into the south, he came back with the queer members of the animal kingdom: the parrots—little fellows trotting back and forth bearing delicate rose petals above them as parrots; the vampire bats which he proved do not kill or even suck blood; the tadpoles that grow smaller as they grow older; the spear nose bats.

Wife Survives. He was born in Newark, N. J., and at 20 was lecturing before New York's board of education. He was a science reporter on the New York Times and then, in July, 1899, became curator of reptiles at the Bronx zoo.

Dr. Ditmars, who lived at 885 Post road, Scarsdale, N. Y., had been in the hospital since the middle of February.

Surviving are his wife, the former Clara E. Hurd, whom he married in 1903, and two daughters, Mrs. John Stanchfield, of 55 Larchmont avenue, Larchmont, N. Y., and Miss Gladys Ditmars, of Scarsdale.

Funeral services will be held Thursday evening at Mrs. Stanchfield's home.

Gargantua's Trainer Dies After Operation

NEW YORK, May 12.—(P)—Richard Kroener, trainer of the giant gorilla Gargantua, was dead today because, friends said, he postponed surgical treatment too long in the belief his personal care was needed for the survival of his charge.

Kroener, 57, died yesterday in Polytechnic hospital after an operation for a natural ailment from which he had long been suffering. He had been the gorilla's trainer

Latin American 'Critical' Items Get Preference

Will Be Placed Over Domestic Orders, WPB Rules.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(P)—Exports of critical materials to the Latin American republics will receive preference over domestic orders, the War Production Board announced today, to the extent necessary to meet delivery schedules fixed by the Board of Economic Warfare and the WPB.

WPB issued a "general exports order" listing almost 100 materials and products as essential to the economies of the other American republics and declaring that Latin American orders for the items were entitled to preferential treatment.

When an order for any of the materials is served on a producer, together with an export license issued by BEW, the order must be filled on the delivery date specified in the license "regardless of any other orders bearing high preference ratings on the producer's books or delivery schedules," the WPB ruled.

for the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey circus since the beast was six years old.

More recently, the female gorilla, Toto, had been entrusted to his care.

Kroener, who had suffered several accidents while attending the gorilla, entered the hospital April 22. The circus was in Boston when Kroener died.

Employees of Madison Square Garden and friends of the circus troupe said that although Gargantua had attacked Kroener on several occasions—once in Miami, nearly crushing his arm, and another time grasping him through the bars—Kroener was one of the few persons for whom the great ape had the slightest affection.

Former Elon College President Succumbs

BLACK MOUNTAIN, N. C., May 12.—(P)—Dr. William Allen Harper, 62, former president of Elon College, (N. C.) and a former member of the faculty of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., died at his home here last night after a long illness. The funeral will be held at Burlington Thursday afternoon.

MOTHER'S DAY FETED. Atlanta Kiwanis Club yesterday celebrated Mother's Day with a special luncheon program at the Ansley hotel. Dr. Vernon S. Broyles, of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, was principal speaker. Mothers and wives of Kiwanians attended in number and each was presented with a white and red rose.

Ida Jean Kain's Slim Figure Proves Her Theory Correct

By SALLY FORTH.

• • • IF YOU FIND SCORES of Atlanta clubwomen all at once growing slimmer and lovelier, you can credit Ida Jean Kain with the sudden change. Not that Atlanta women haven't for years read her column on diet and health which appears daily in The Constitution, but she is a guest in the city this week, and in her case, "seeing is believing."

One glimpse of her and you furtively feel that "extra tire" around your midriff, and wonder if your waist will ever again be slim and graceful, and if you'll ever, EVER be able to wear one of those pleated-all-around skirts like hers again. Then you secretly vow to get back on the Kain diet tomorrow and stick to it at all costs. If she can look that lovely, then her rule works!

Of course part of the credit for the predicted improvement in Atlanta's feminine ranks (figure-actively speaking) should go to Mildred Seydell, president of the City Federation of Women's Clubs. For it was her good judgment and initiative that brought the charming health expert here to speak yesterday to members of the 98 clubs that make up the federation.

If you were fortunate enough to meet Ida Jean, she smiled at you (she is barely five feet tall) with her dancing gray-blue eyes, and grasped your hand with all the sincerity and friendliness of a lifelong friend. And in an instant you just knew that you could depend upon her—that if she said you would lose 20 pounds in 10 weeks by eliminating those calorie-packed fats from your diet, then your worries were over, for she knew what she was talking about.

Chic and vivacious and most attractive, everyone who meets her falls captive to her personal charms. And the palm should go to Mildred for giving Atlanta that pleasure!

If you have planned to have one or more of the cadets from the Naval Air Base as your guests for Sunday dinner, call Mrs. Wilmer Dutton at Hemlock 1467, or Mrs. H. J. McDargh at Hemlock 5334, to make arrangements for you. And don't forget that today is the deadline!

• • • RABUN GAP-NACOCHEE CLUB members have a rare treat in store this afternoon when they meet at the home of Mrs. Guy Woolford in Druid Hills. For, following the brief business meeting and the annual election of officers, they will be privileged to hear an address by Bishop George West, who is lord bishop of Burma and Rangoon.

The club president, Betty (Mrs. Charles) Meriwether, was all excited yesterday when she called Sally to tell her about the club's good fortune. It seems that the bishop, who is a leader in the Church of England, is visiting in this diocese, following his appearance here with the cast of "You Can Depend America," and it was just by sheer luck that she learned he was available for a talk.

Bishop West was on furlough from Burma when war broke out there, and he has not been allowed to return. He will speak, of course, on his life and experiences in the places that at the moment are focusing the attention of the entire world as the center of the Pacific war theater.

• • • MEMBERS of the Motor Corps of the Atlanta Chapter of the Red Cross are always doing nice things, such as setting up recreation halls and entertainment programs for the men in the service at Conley. But they likewise have taken thought of the recreational needs of soldiers at Lawson General hospital who need to get outdoors for a little fun, now that they are getting well. So Catherine (Mrs. Everard) Richardson and members of the Motor Corps arranged to give a picnic for men from the hospital yesterday afternoon. The picnic was staged at North Fulton Park from 2 to 7

First Rule of Good Posture Is To Learn To Lean Against Your Backbone

By Ida Jean Kain

Get out of the lazy habit of leaning against your stays or your belt buckle. If you will lean against your backbone instead you can prevent that middle spread at any age.

To get the idea, sit down on the floor with the hips against a wall, legs extended straight out in front. Contract the abdominal muscles. Start with the lower abdominals and keep pulling up and in until the small of the back is pressed flat against the wall. Hold it! Now, you are leaning on your backbone.

When you sit in a straight-back chair you can get that same feeling of firmness through the middle of your figure. Don't slump and let the small of your back cave in. Make your spinal column support you and it will be easy for you to maintain good posture.

I am not interested in posture for posture's sake. I don't believe you should stand straight all the time or try to hold yourself rigidly erect under all circumstances. It is important to relax your muscles during inactivity. And when you are tired you should take your weight off your feet. If you can do it, lie down and let go with all your muscles.

Your natural posture shouldn't be rigid, but it should be erect. Slumping should not feel more comfortable than holding yourself up. During inactivity of any kind—sitting, standing or moving about—your body is more efficient when in correct alignment. You tire much less easily than you do when your lineup is poor.

I am concerned with posture because it is fairly direct index to your health. It might be only laziness that is keeping you from standing erect. But again, there might be some underlying cause which is having a bad effect on your health. Perhaps your three meals a day do not add up to vitality. Or you may be chronically fatigued from skimping on your sleeping hours. Or your posture may reflect the lack of vigorous exercise. It takes a certain amount of exercise to keep the muscles of the body in excellent tone. This is particularly true of the trunk muscles. They're the ones that keep you in shape but to hold your abdominal organs in place. When you allow them to relax—as you do when you lean against them—gravity wins. Your organs sag and crowd each other and your whole system functions less efficiently. It takes muscular tonicity to lean against your backbone. Start leaning!

Points for Parents

By Edythe Thomas Wallace.

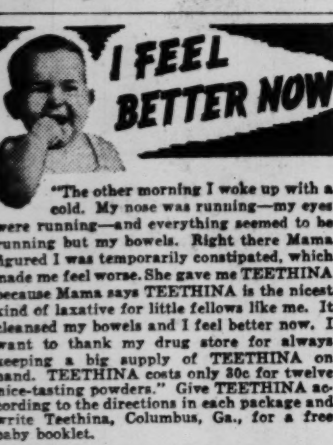

Father: "Yes, daughter, I agree that the war situation is serious, but I have every confidence in America's ability to win."

Father: "Don't bother your pretty head about the war, my dear. Leave worrying of that sort to us older folk. You just forget about it."

Young people get more assurance from facing facts with their parents than by being shut away from their parents' worries.

I FEEL BETTER NOW

"The other morning I woke up with a cold. My nose was running—my eyes were running—and everything seemed to be running but my bowels. Right then I figured I was temporarily constipated, which made me feel worse. She gave me TEEETHINA because I knew TEEETHINA is the most kind of laxative for little fellows like me. It cleaned my bowels and I feel better now. I want to thank my drug store for always keeping a big supply of TEEETHINA on hand. TEEETHINA costs only 50c for twelve nice-tasting powders. Give TEEETHINA according to the directions in each package and write TEEETHINA, Columbia, Ga., for a free baby booklet."

Facts No Married Woman Should Be Denied

It is every wife's right to know certain facts. Her greatest happiness, her physical and mental well-being, may be at stake. Yet thousands unknowingly use over-strong solutions of acids, which can burn, scar and desensitize delicate tissue.

Deodorizes—by actually destroying odor. Protects personal cleanliness. Yet Zonite is non-caustic, non-poisonous, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles bought. Clyde Standard Hurls No-Hitter Against Marist

Typist Fans 10, Gets 3 Hits; Bishop, Fretwell Pace Smithie Win.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.
Clyde Standard was king for a day yesterday. He could do no wrong. All the Commercial High pitching ace did was hurl a no-hit, no-run six-inning game against Marist, strike out 10 batters and pour out three doubles in three trips to the plate himself.

The Typists battered out 20 safeties for a 16 to 0 victory on the Marist diamond in the Big Five League game which was called at the end of the sixth because of the weather. Dickie Davis socked a home run; Able Doman had a perfect day with three for three and Ed Brown spanked out three for four. The heavy honors, however, go to Standard who was so effective only one ball was hit to the outfield off his delivery. He walked only four men.

In the other league game Tech High smashed G. M. A. 9 to 3, at College Park to retain their chance to the Boys' High for the loop crown when these ancient rivals clash Friday at the Rose Bowl field.

Charlie Bishop, on the mound for the Blacksmiths, held the Cadets to five hits, struck out eight and banded a long home run. Clifford Fretwell pasted two round-trippers, and Eddie Baker had two blows in two trips. "Butterbean" Poore had a homer among his two hits in four tries, and Ray Woddall also got two safeties in four appearances. Perro's triple was G. M. A.'s longest blow.

Preparedness Important in this day and time is the art of self-defense or knowing how to take care of one's self in hand-to-hand encounters.

It's much the same as preparing for air raids. Full knowledge is important regardless of whether use of this knowledge is ever made necessary.

At any rate, amateur boxing programs have a new significance today. They are great institutions for youngsters. The training which leads up to active participation develops strong bodies, and the matches teach self-reliance, among other things.

A fellow's on his own in a boxing ring. For the last three years the Y. M. C. A. has been sponsoring amateur boxing weekly at Lakewood park. Regularly there have been entries from boys' groups in the vicinity. And this year, in addition to a novice division, there'll be a special division for beginners.

As features of the Y. M. C. A. program each week, open class boys of this city take on out-of-town competition.

And as often as not free-swinging novices or beginners will steal the show.

In these Friday night programs at Lakewood those in charge are extremely careful to see that boys are never overmatched. One boy often will prove better than another, but they'll meet on even terms at the bell.

Boxing instruction is a regular part of the Y. M. C. A. fare, as well as that of the Atlanta Boys Club, which supplies many fine contestants for the weekly programs.

Equipment is issued each contestant.

A Sight To See Come early to Ponce de Leon park Thursday night and see some of the confirmed pass users walk through the turnstiles on a paid ticket. Or have you already seen most of the wonders of the world?

Last time I paid to see couple of athletic teams perform was for the Tech-Georgia freshman game for the benefit of the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children.

A sports writer pays for any worthy cause, whether he's actively working or not. As Joe Engel says, "It's the only time they don't seem to have their pockets lined with fish hooks."

Thursday night's game is the Cracker-Baron donation to the Red Cross. All proceeds are to be used to pay for repairing the building in which the blood bank is located. What could be more worthy at this particular time?

Everybody pays Thursday night. They might even include the players. Brooklyn and Giant players paid the other day in their game for naval relief.

I have always insisted the left fielder on any team ought to pay to get in the park, and I'd like to see it happen once. I'd like to have a picture of it. Of course, the left fielder feels the same way about the baseball writers... and I'll be glad to arrange a picture for him.

A big attendance is urged for the Red Cross game. Chairman Oby Brewer had his choice of games and he chose the Barons, one of the teams figured to be in the pennant race through the summer.

As a member of the National Red Cross Sports Committee, I personally urge your full support Thursday night.

In Short Operative Zeke Hopkins, Civitan International prexy, wires from Memphis—"Have been to Little Rock and Memphis investigating the baseball situation. Saw Larry Miller and Blakeney but couldn't find Paul Richards. Looks as if Doc Prothro has brought on winning ball games played here and the umpires a priority on fines exacted in Little Rock. Suggest you see if Earl Mann can get preference rating for the Crackers."

The card from Louisville, Ky., reads: "Mr. and Mrs. William Russell Daley announce the marriage of their daughter, Jane Daley Asbury, to Mr. George McNeal Trautman on Friday, May the eighth, nineteen hundred and forty-two. Louisville, Ky." Mr. George McNeal Trautman is president of the American Association and old hunting buddy of Major Trammell Scott and mine.

The Sporting News, represented by J. G. Taylor Spink, has published a couple of record books which dyed-in-the-sun fans will find indispensable. They're called the Dope Book and The Register. One is crammed full of facts,

NORRIS LAKE REOPENS

I announced in an ad in The Atlanta Constitution April 16 that my lake was open to public fishing. On April 30 Mr. J. E. Wall and Mr. C. C. James, acting as agents of Mr. Zack D. Cravey, wildlife director, ordered me to close my lake. They offered no reason for this action. I unsuccessfully appealed to Mr. Cravey. I can no longer hold up my head and say that I am a free-born American under these circumstances, and hereby announce that Norris Lake again will be open Friday, May 15, under my regulations. H. C. Crackers Wallop Barons, 7 to 2

Grounder Injures Rambert's Ankle; Atlanta Scores 6 in 8th.

By JACK TROY.

While an eighth-inning uprising paid off in a victory over Birmingham, 7 to 2, and ended a four-game losing streak last night, the Crackers may have come out loser as Pep Rambert, ace right-hander, suffered a severe leg injury in the role of relief pitcher. Floyd Stromme, the winning pitcher, retired in the midst of the winning rally in the eighth, Jim Cox batting for him, and Rambert went in to finish the game. With two out in the ninth and the Barons hopelessly behind in the game, Peeler batted for Matzak. His sharp grounder hit Rambert on the side of his left ankle, and Rambert was carried to the operating room. An early examination was not possible as the leg was immediately soaked in ice.

UNUSUAL GAME. It was an unusual game anyway. Umpire Parks received word in the sixth inning that his wife had been injured in a car-train collision and Umpire Blackard finished the game behind the pitcher.

The Barons held a 2-1 lead going into the eighth, but Bob Malloy weakened and Matzak was ineffective in a relief role, giving Stromme his first home victory of the year. Ed Nowak finished the game after Rambert was injured.

The Crackers home-coming was marked by the fine hitting of Doc Smith and Charley Woddall, just back from Savannah. They led the 10-hit attack with three timely wallops each.

STROMME EFFECTIVE. Stromme's pitching was quite effective, and the Barons total of hits off him amounted to only seven. He fully deserved the victory, his last at long last.

Larry Miller will pitch the Barons in the second game of the series tonight. The Barons choice was not announced.

Last night's contest was finished in a drizzle and also in a cloud of gloom on the Cracker side because of injury to ace right-hander Rambert.

CRACKERS SCORE FIRST. The Crackers led off the scoring with a run in the second inning. Woddall celebrated his return to the lineup with a double and scored on Swiggett's single.

Dejan singled and stole second with none away in the fourth. But he failed to score on Polly's sharp single to left, and both runners were left stranded as Goldstein, Castie and Conway went down in order.

The Crackers loaded the bases on a walk, fielder's choice and a hit in their half of the fourth, but Stromme struck out for the third out.

It was a tie ball game in the sixth. Harrington walked, Dejan singled and Blakeney errored on Polly's grounder, tying the score.

There was none out, but the side was quickly retired as Goldstein popped to Glock, and Castie hit into a double play, Glock to Brown.

A Cracker lapse and a Texas leaguer gave the Barons the lead in the eighth. Gamble led off with a single and traveled all the way to third on Harrington's sacrifice when third base was left uncovered. Dejan made it two outs, but Gamble scored when Polly's fly fell between Blakeney and Thomassie.

The Crackers recaptured the lead and won the game in their half, scoring six runs. After Glock walked, Woddall singled and Swiggett walked. Matzak replaced Malloy. Smith drove in two runs with a single against the left field bleacher fence. Blakeney drove in another with a single. Two more scored on a double, error by Conway on Cox's grounder, and finally Cox tallied on an outfield fly by Thomassie.

Education Board Cuts Prep Games The Board of Education yesterday put a ceiling on the number of football games for Atlanta High school teams, ruling that schedules must contain no more than 10 games a season.

The board likewise adopted a rule discouraging post-season games. Post-season games can be held only by approval of the board, it was decided.

Tom Drake Hopes 'To Forget Game'

TORONTO, May 12.—(AP)—Toronto of the International League has returned Catcher Bill Jackson to Knoxville, of the Southern Association, and also has lost Pitcher Tom Drake.

Jackson, purchased on a conditional basis, missed spring training because of a long holdout. Drake, a big right-hander purchased from the Brooklyn Dodgers, walked into General Manager Lee MacPhail's office and announced he was quitting. He said he was leaving for his home in Nashville, Tenn., and would forget about baseball. In six games Drake went the distance only once. He won one game and lost two.

Ryan Starts Triple Play

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP)—The New York Giants reeled off the first triple play of the season in the major leagues today in the seventh inning of their game with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Relief Pitcher John Lanning opened the inning with a double and Pete Coscarart was awarded first base when Catcher Hank Danning, of the Giants, tipped his bat.

Then Frankie Gustine lined to Second Baseman Connie Ryan, who threw to Shortstop Billy Jurges in time for the second out and he tagged Coscarart coming into second.

QUEENS OF THE ICE—Pretty Patricia Jones, 16 (right), who entered as Miss Dallas, won the title of National Queen of the Ice in the finals of the Ice-Capades contest. Jeanne Sook, 18, as Miss Los Angeles, won the second-place honors. The contest was held at Los Angeles.

Southern League

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 12.—(AP)—Jim Oglesby's home run over the right-field fence with two out in the ninth inning gave the Little Rock Travelers a 6-5 victory over Knoxville in the series opener today.

Oglesby's blow came off Relief Pitcher Herb Anderson, off whom Hinchler Trelaxer had singled Cantrell home to tie the count in the eighth.

West Fulton Nine Captures 3d Title in Row

Owls Challenge Purples For City Crown; Decatur Wins.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Little West Fulton high school continued to write one of the most brilliant chapters in Atlanta prep sports' annals as they downed Richardson High, 6 to 1, to capture their third straight N. G. I. C. league baseball crown in the only three years the school has had a team.

Leamon Wilson, Owl flinger, gave a brilliant performance in the clincher game, giving up only two scratch hits. He was well supported by his mates, who garnered ten hits, including a ninth-inning home run by Jim Dickey and three hits in four trips by Billy Walraven.

Immediately after assuring themselves of the title, Coach Vic Hansard's nine issued a challenge to Boys' High to play them for the city championship in a three-game series on a neutral field. The Purples and Owls have met once this season with Shorty Doyal's Parkway Drivers, winning 6 to 5, on Clint Castiberry's ninth-inning home run which West Fulton supporters claim was a foul ball.

The only other club to beat West Fulton this year was Decatur High, and had not West Fulton won the Richardson game the Decaturites would have tied them for the N. G. I. C. crown, since the Bulldogs trampled Marietta in their final tilt yesterday, 16 to 6, as Allen Shelton hurled five-hit ball.

I'm one of those war experts who has a wall map and a package of colored pins.

I never lose. When things get too tough I pocket the pins and roll up the map.

The map is up on the wall after good news from Madagascar and the Solomon Islands. A couple of years ago I invented a word to cover people like me. Ostrichism.

Ostrichism is an individual blackout. You poke your head in the sands of temporary escape while the hot sun is curling your tail feathers.

But I'm glad to say I'm getting over that. One thing they can ration for me is sugar-coating the facts.

Gallup Poll Reveals: People Satisfied With F. D. R.

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., May 12.—Despite American military reverses in the Philippines, the personal popularity of President Roosevelt continues at a high level throughout the United States. Approximately eight voters in every ten approve, in general, of the way he is handling his job as President in these crucial days of war emergency.

Public confidence in the President is measured at regular intervals by American Institute of Public Opinion polls on the question, "In general, do you approve or disapprove of the way Roosevelt is handling his job today?" The latest result, together with the trend in recent months, is shown below:

	Approve	Disapp.	Undec.
Nov. 1941 (before Pearl Harbor)	72%	19%	9%
Jan. 1942	84	9	7
March	78	13	9
Today	78	13	9

The poll reveals, however, that while the great majority express confidence in the President's leadership, many have some fault to find with one or more of his policies.

Approximately 30 per cent of those who approve of him say that there are some things he is doing which they do not particularly like.

Things Criticized. Their criticisms fall into three main categories, as follows: The first is that he is "showing too much favoritism toward labor unions." Voters express this criticism in many different ways, such as "he allows labor unions to get away with murder," "he's pampering the labor unions," "he isn't tough enough with labor leaders."

The second criticism is that "he doesn't delegate enough power," "he's a poor administrator because he tries to do too much himself." Typical of this comment, "He isn't willing to fire a person who has outlived his usefulness." Others put it more strongly: "He won't fire the deadheads."

Spending Scores. The third most frequent criticism centers on government spending for non-war purposes. "The administration is spending too much money on unnecessary 'frills,'" is the most common statement of this group. "The government," according to others, "is bonodoggling with defense money."

All the above criticisms come from voters who, while they find fault with specific policies, say that in general they approve of the way the President is handling his task.

The fact that Roosevelt has the confidence of 78 per cent of the country does not mean that the Democratic party will poll any such proportion of votes in the congressional elections this fall.

Measure of Confidence. The Institute's index is a measure of confidence in the President as a leader and as a personality, and is not an index of party strength.

The President was re-elected with 55 per cent of the major party vote in 1940. A measurement of Democratic party strength at the present time was recently completed by the Institute. It indicated about 58 per cent for the Democrats, 42 per cent for the Republicans.

Mine on Beach At Lauderdale; Floridans Flee

Area Along Ocean Front Is Evacuated After Missile Is Found.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., May 12.—(AP)—A five-block area of Fort Lauderdale beach on the ocean front was evacuated today when a large steel object floated into the surf and was identified by police as a stray mine.

The Navy had no immediate confirmation that a floating mine was in these waters, but dispatched an expert to investigate.

Police Chief H. S. Becker took charge of the blocking of the area. Coast guardsmen from a nearby base came to the scene and one of their officers said apparently it was a mine that had broken its moorings and floated to the beach. Streets were blocked off and nearby homes evacuated under police direction. Traffic was stopped several hundred yards from the scene and only coast guardsmen were allowed to approach closer.

WHEN EXPERTS GET TOGETHER—Ida Jean Kain, Constitution columnist and authority on diet and exercise, chatted yesterday morning at the Atlanta Woman's Club with Warren Foster, song writer, whose latest composition, "Private Jimmy Johnson," a war song dedicated to the privates and seamen in the war, was presented in public for the first time to members of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs. Miss Kain spoke on "Nutrition Is Power." Mr. Foster's song, it was announced, will be published next Monday.

USO Chairmen Ida Jean Kain Hear Leaders Sees Victory in At Rally Here Womanpower

National Director Tells Group About Unit's History.

Charged with the responsibility of setting up the local organizations which will make possible the United Service Organizations' "homes away from home" for the men of America's armed services, Georgia section chairmen for the forthcoming USO fund drive returned to their homes over the state last night after an inspirational rally here addressed by some of the nation's foremost USO leaders.

At a luncheon meeting in a downtown hotel, the county and district chiefs heard Kenneth Keneth-Smith, associate national director of the campaign. F. Herbert Wells, nationally known community organizer, of New York, urged the section chairmen to obtain the highest type leadership for the Georgia campaigns and to "organize completely."

Major Trammell Scott, president of the Southern Baseball Association, recalled his own service days in the World War, spoke glowingly of the 1917 efforts of morale-boosting agencies and voiced enthusiasm for the co-ordinated program of World War II as a "tremendous stride forward."

She outlined, in nontechnical terms, a basic diet including a daily pint of milk per day for adults (a quart for children), a daily serving of a green or yellow vegetable, a daily serving of a citrus fruit, a whole grain cereal to supply vitamin B-1, an egg daily and a daily serving of meat, fish or fowl. She advocates at least one serving of a meat organ each week, because these foods are extra rich in B vitamins. For the overweight or underweight person she advocates variations of this basic diet with additions or subtractions in calorie content, but not in the protective foods which are included in the basic diet.

Fed After Talk.
She explained the "why" of this diet, by showing that the foods act with each other to produce health, strength and good nerves, but that no food by itself is sufficient.

She was introduced to her audience by Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Atlanta Constitution, and was honored after her talk at a luncheon at the club at which time she was presented by Sally Saver, foods editor of The Constitution.

In the afternoon she spoke again to a selected group representing home economics teachers, nutrition and canteen workers of the Red Cross and AWWS and others. Her afternoon talk was more technical in nature, but advanced the same ideas as those presented to a lay audience in the morning.

Mildred Seydell is president of the Atlanta Federation, under whose auspices she appeared here.
